Historic Land Monument Moved To State Line Park

Hidden for years from the view of all except a few die-hard historians, an historic granite monument was lifted out of the center of a slag fill Friday and moved to a new foundation in a small roadside park at the Ohio Pennsylvania line.

The six-foot shaft, in virtual obscurity for 79 years, will be in the limelight Sept. 30 at a ceremony marking the 175th anniversary of establishment of the "point of beginning" for surveying the western public lands of the United States, termed "the greatest subdivision on earth."

FATE DICTATED THAT the "point of beginning" would be established on a flat plain on the north side of the Ohio River in what is now the state line area in the eastern section of East Liverpool. But when a wooden stake was driven into the spot on Aug. 20, 1785, the site was part of an Indian - infested wilderness and Pittsburgh was one of the western outposts of civilization.

The heavy monument was lifted from its original base by a highlift which then trundled it to the new roadside park alongside the East Liverpool-Midland Rd. at the state line.

In its new location, the monument will be dedicated at the ceremony Sept. 30 by the East Liverpool Historical Society and the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping, a nationwide organization with nearly 6,000 members.

DESPITE ITS obscurity, the "point of beginning" marker played a major role in many aspects of the nation's history. It is of particular importance to the ACSM because the marking off of adjoining territory "exerted a lasting influence upon subsequent surveying" and played a "part in the foundation of the American rectangular land survey system."

The monument could not be placed at the original "point of beginning" because the spot still is virtually inaccessible to the general public — 1,112 feet due south of where the marker now stands. The original "point of beginning" marker probably was a wooden stake which rotted away within a few years.

The monument moved Friday is one that was erected in 1881 by a joint commission appointed by the states of Ohio and Pennsylvania to resurvey and remark the boundary line established in 1786.

For years, it has been surrounded by the deep slag fill placed on a state line industrial site owned by the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. The fill is 50 to 60 feet deep, but the steel concern was careful to allow none of the slag to be dumped onto the monument or the immediate area in which it sat.

THE MONUMENT and its heavy base were moved separately, then placed on a new concrete foundation in the little roadside park, just a few feet away from the heavily-traveled highway. Protected by 2x4 timbers, the monument was chained to the highlift for the trip of a few hundred yards to its new site.

On the monument will be placed a new inscription to explain its significance. It will read: "1,112 feet due south of this spot a marker was placed Aug. 20, 1785, to establish the "point of beginnng" for surveying the Public Lands of the United States. This inscription placed and dedicated Sept. 30, 1960, in joint action of the East Liverpool Historical Society and the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping."

Citizens Meet For Hancock Cleanup Drive

A citizens' committee organized "to promote better government and law enforcement in Hancock County" held its initial meeting Friday night in the First Christian Church of New Cumberland.

Hoping that the cleanup campaign will signal the beginning of an end to alleged vice conditions, the committee aired plans for a public meeting Thursday night at 7:30 in the Weirton Community Center.

Organization of the committee followed a week-long session of the West Virginia Crime Commission, which heard testimony of widespread gambling and illegal liquor sales in the Northern Panhandle.

A spokesman said the group in its first meeting discussed reports that elected officials "are not carrying out their duties." "The people should unite and try to get things straightened out," it was emphasized.

Candidates in the Nov. 8 general election and party heads will be asked to attend a dinner meeting with the committee Oct. 18 in the Weirton Community Center for a discussion of duties of county offices.

The committee plans to present its ideas of proper law enforcement, the spokesman said. Don Chaney of Chester presided. Presidents were present from Chester, Newell and New Cumberland.

Sheriff Clayton H. Hobbs meanwhile reiterated his stand that he has received no complaints from

Lumumba Disappears

Reds Pull Out Of Congo Under Kasavubu's Order

Bid To Gain Foothold In Nation Fails

U.N. Troops Guard Soviets' Departure From Leopoldville

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The hammer and sickle flag of the Soviet Union came down from its flagpost at the Soviet Embassy today and Ambassador Mikhail D. Yakovlev left immediately for the airport as ordered by Congo President Joseph Kasavubu.

The ambassador and all other Soviets and Czechs, including Czech Ambassador Joseph Virius, were ordered expelled from the country after Col. Joseph Mobutu seized power for the army three days ago.

The Soviets and Czechs maintained the only permanent diplomatic missions of the Soviet bloc in Leopoldville.

The Communists began pulling out as a flood of rumors circulated in the capital over the disappearance of Patrice Lumumba. But there was no official confirmation on what actually happened to the disputed premier.

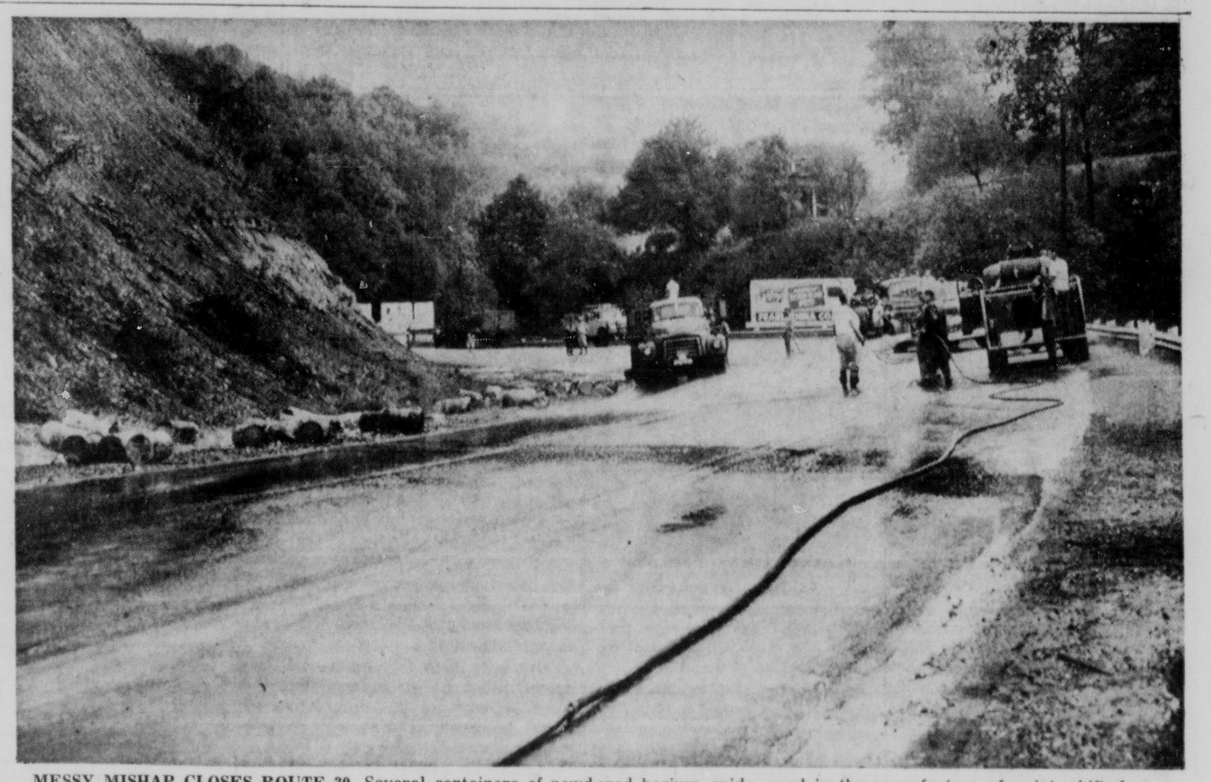

With him Yakovlev took the hopes of the Communists bloc for any penetration of the Congo in the immediate future.

The total number of Eastern officials and "technicians" in the Congo has been estimated at between 400 and 500.

They were moving out of the two embassies in trucks, vans and automobiles most of the morning.

The Communists had been moving into the Congo with the explicit assistance of Lumumba for the past month.

The Soviet Union sent 11 Ilyushin-14 planes into the Congo to assist Lumumba in his war against political foes in Kasai and Katanga provinces.

MESSY MISHAP CLOSES ROUTE 30. Several containers of powdered barium oxide, used in the manufacture of paint, shifted on a curve and spilled from a tractor-trailer driven by Kenneth R. Athey of 6th Ave., LaCroft, about 3:33 p. m. Friday in California Hollow. The barrels broke open, spilling the white powder along the highway for several hundred feet. Traffic was blocked for over two hours as volunteer firemen from Glenmoor, Liverpool Township West and Calcutta washed the chemical from the road. The Lisbon State Highway Patrol said east-bound traffic was detoured down 9th St., up Lisbon St. and through Glenmoor while west-bound traffic was detoured over Route 170 to Calcutta and down St. Clair Ave. The rig is owned by the Travis Co. of Steubenville. Athey was cited for driving with an insecure load and will receive a hearing Monday at 2:30 p. m. in Municipal Court.

3 Curb Meter Bids Received

Wellsville City Board Will Study Proposals

Bids from three firms for installation of parking meters on a trial basis were opened by Safety-Service Director William S. Robinson of Wellsville Friday noon. Some 230 meters are to be used.

The Magee-Hale Park-O-Meter Co. of Oklahoma City, Okla., bid $53 per meter for a "manumatic-twin" installed and $56.50 for a single meter installed. The "manumatic-twin" is two meter heads on one standard.

Although the specifications call for manual type meters, the firm also entered a bid of $60 per meter for twin meters and $63.50 for the single unit. Magee-Hale promised delivery in 15 days and complete installation in 30 days. The firm said the city could pay 50 per cent of the revenue or $2 per month per meter.

Dual Parking Meter Co. of Pittsburgh, a subsidiary of the Rockwell Manufacturing Co., bid $57.50 per meter. Sanders Firestone of East Liverpool is the agent.

Payment is $1.75 per month per meter. Delivery was offered in 30 to 60 days.

The Duncan Parking Meter Division of the Motor Products Crop. submitted a bid through the Kountz Equipment Co. of Pittsburgh.

It offered a Duncan-Miller manual deluxe model at $62.50 each and a Duncan-Miller burglar resistant model at $51.50.

Payment was set at $1.50 per month or 50 per cent of the income or terms mutually agreed upon. Delivery was promised in 30 days.

The Board of Control, consisting of Robinson and Mayor William J. Shoub, will meet sometime next week along with Solicitor William Bush to study the proposals.

Meters are to be tried for a year. Opponents of the move attempted to get a referendum on the legislation adopted by City Council but failed to obtain the proper number of signatures to have the matter placed on the ballot.

Neff, 4 Others Scheduled To Be Sentenced

Group In 'Kickback' Case Ordered Into Court On Sept. 26

BEAVER — Former State Sen. Samuel G. Neff and four other men will be sentenced Sept. 26 on their convictions in a Beaver County highways "kickback" scheme.

The date was set Friday by Judge Morgan H. Sohn of Beaver County Court.

Besides Neff, the defendants are James Macry, former county Democratic party secretary; Robert Yoho and Leon Kaleta, former state highways supervisors; and Edward Mitche, former highways foreman.

Neff, former manager of the State Workmen's Insurance Fund and one-time chairman of the county's Democratic party, and Macry were convicted last September of conspiracy to commit extortion.

Yoho and Kaleta were convicted of extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. Mitche pleaded guilty to both charges and turned state's evidence.

The convictions stemmed from charges that the five collected money illegally from contractors who leased their equipment to the State Highways Department.

The penalty for extortion is a fine of $500 and—or a year in jail. Conspiracy to commit extortion calls for a $500 fine or 2 years in jail or both.

Counsel for the defendants has indicated he will file an appeal following passing of sentence.

Trial Seen Next Week In Hookstown Fatality

The second week of trials on recent Grand Jury indictments will get underway Monday and probably will include that of an Aliquippan involved in the traffic death of a Hookstown motorist.

Coy Calvin Dalton, 47, of Aliquippa was charged with involuntary manslaughter and driving while intoxicated, after his station wagon plowed into the left side of the car of J. Hall Swaney, 58, of Hookstown, who was fatally injured, on July 1.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Routes 18 and 51 in Center Township, Beaver County, some 3 miles from Monaca.

At Democratic Convention

DiSalle Talk Hits At Religious Issue

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Democratic Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's job was to introduce the keynoter Friday night as his party's state convention opened. But he grabbed the ball and ran with it in an emotion-packed speech which had the delegates on their feet cheering.

Speaking without a prepared text, DiSalle came up with a fighting speech covering both state and national politics, and a sally into the international field:

"With Premier Khrushchev posturing all over the world—and with our admitted racial problem here in the United States, can we afford to give him one more tool to use against us?"

Although he did not mention in so many words the religious overtones in this year's presidential campaign, his obvious reference was to the frequently raised issue of the Catholic faith of the Democratic presidential nominee, Sen. John F. Kennedy.

An estimated 1,200 Democrats —delegates and guests—flocked to the state convention opener to hear Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan at a $10-a-plate dinner. But it was DiSalle who drew the cheers even before Hart got to his feet.

The climax of the convention comes this afternoon with the presentation—and sure adoption — of the Ohio Democratic platform.

DiSalle, himself a Catholic and an early Kennedy supporter, pleaded for a campaign free from bias and the election of a president "according to the needs of the nation and the qualifications of the candidate."

Then he asserted to the cheering delegates:

"If we are to lose touch with the democratic and constitutional concept of the dignity of man, we don't want to be elected to office."

The governor asserted the Democratic program for Ohio already is largely in effect. He cited such things as higher appropriations for public schools and universities, removal of aid-for - aged ceilings and enactment of a civil rights law.

"All are better off," he asserted, "because the people of Ohio elected a legislature that could get things done."

But, DiSalle declared flatly, "We are going to adopt a new utility rate-making formula — one which will protect consumers from unduly high utility rates."

Such a proposal was defeated in the Democratic-dominated Ohio House last year. It would have substituted a "fair value" formula for the present "reconstruction cost new" valuation of utility properly used in calculating a fair rate of return on investment.

But DiSalle spoke with renewed belief in his eventual success in making the change with the assertion that the threat of higher utility rates may be deferring new industries from locating in Ohio.

He related that one firm which has considered locating in Ohio has become hesitant because of a threat of a utility rate increase next year. He identified neither the industry nor the utility.

FROM THE POINT on the Ohio River bank here, a line was surveyed due west for 42 miles. It later became known as the "geographer's line." Every six miles along the line a party of surveyors moved southward, surveying a north-south line to the Ohio River. These lines formed the boundaries for the ranges of townships. Later, east - west lines were run at six-mile intervals, forming the tiers of townships each six miles square.

Sept. 30 is the 175th anniversary of the date the survey party moved out from the initial point to lay out the "geographer's line."

Preparation of the little roadside park for the monument site was handled principally by the Pennsylvania State Highway Department. It is approximately 115 long and 40 feet wide at its widest point. Th site was filled and given a slag surface by the Beaver County Division of the State Highway Department.

GUARD-RAILS have been erected along the edge of the fill adjoining the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. right-of-way immediately to the south.

The historical society arranged for the work through Park H. Martin, secretary of the Pennsylvania Highway Department. Martin relayed his instructions through L. A. Guarascio of Pittsburgh, assistant maintenance engineer of the Pittsburgh Division. Robert Buttermore is superintendent of the Beaver County District, which was in direct charge of the work.

The sheriff also declared that eight deputies on his staff are not enough to halt illegal liquor sales in county taverns. Deputies cannot enter the clubs in secrecy, and by the time they do enter the doors, the liquor is whisked out of sight, he said. The county has over 100 taverns, it was estimated earlier.

Beman Faces Gardner For Amateur Title

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Deane Beman, who says he thrives under pressure, and Bob Gardner, who says he is thriving after shedding 30 pounds on a crash diet, try today for the biggest goal of their golfing careers—the National Amateur championship.

They start their 36-hole man-to-man combat over the 6,616-yard St. Louis Country Club course, carved through the hilly terrain of a pine and oak tree forest.

The six-foot Gardner, 39, now down to a reedy 161 pounds after chawing on steaks and cottage cheese in a reducing campaign started last winter, is making his ninth try at the National Amateur crown. His best finish previously was the fifth round in 1955 before being ousted by the then British Amateur champion, Joe Conrad.

Beman, 22, a cherubic, 5-7, 143-pounder from Bethesda, Md., lists the British Amateur as a highlight of his golfing credentials. He won it last year.

The press of his business administration studies at the University of Maryland prevented him from defending his title in Britain this year.

Gardner Friday stayed even with Chuck Lewis, 19, of Little Rock, Ark., scion of an old golfing clan, through 25 holes, then broke loose on the final nine for a 2 and 1 victory.

Beman didn't find the going so rough against John Farquhar, 24, son of the Amarillo, Texas, municipal course pro. He won 5 and 4.

Polio Shots Data Will Be Requested

Information on polio shots will be collected from a number of local families in connection with the September Current Population Survey, Director Edgar L. Bryan of the Census Bureau's regional field office at Pittsburgh announced today.

The information is being collected for the U. S. Public Health Service so that estimates of the number of persons who have had polio shots can be brought up to date.

The polio shot questions, to be asked of persons under 60 years of age, are: Have you had any polio injections or shots? How many shots have you already had? When did you get the latest shot?

The polio shot questions will be in addition to the regular monthly inquiries on employment and unemployment. The Current Population Survey will be conducted here and in 329 other sample areas in the country next week.

Dr. Peale Explains Position During Washington Meeting

NEW YORK — Dr. Norman Vincent Peale issued a statement Friday explaining his position in the meeting at Washington of Protestant ministers and laymen which has added fuel to the religious issue in the presidential campaign. The statement follows:

"Because my participation in the recent Washington meeting of Citizens For Religious Freedom has resulted in this group being called "The Peale Group," I feel it necessary to clarify my own participation in their Washington meeting of Sept. 7.

"I did attend the study conference, as it was called, as one of 150 clergymen and laymen and was asked to preside at one session. I believe that it is perfectly appropriate for a group of Protestants or any other group to meet to discuss and consider the possible impact of the election of a Catholic president upon religious liberties in the United States. However, I did not call this meeting and had nothing to do with setting it up. I was merely present as an invited guest.

"I did not take part in the preparation of its statement of conclusions. I am not a member of this group or of the Protestants and other Americans united for the separation of church and state and hold no office in either organization. I am strongly opposed to any mixture of religious discussion and political partisanship.

"Immediately after the news reports of that meeting appeared, I realized that just this had happened and, therefore, I wired the executive director of Citizens For Religious Freedom withdrawing from any further participation in the group's meetings or activities. I have had no contact with it since that date. I also withdrew from any contact with news media because I felt that any further statements from me would serve to emphasize the issue rather than de-emphasize, as I believe it should be de-emphasized at this time.

"The unwarranted implications which have been drawn from my attendance at that meeting contradict my record of 30 years of ardent interfaith activity, of which I am justly proud. I have never relinquished my convictions on the question of harmonious relationships among the faiths for one instant and I do not intend to begin doing so now.

"The people have the right to elect a Catholic, a Jew, a Protestant or even someone of no religious affiliation as president, and he has the right to serve. The election should be on the basis of the man best qualified. Each of us must vote according to the dictates of his own conscience. This I believe and regret that my position has ever been presented as anything else."

The Gregorian calendar was first used in the U. S. — then the American Colonies — in 1752.

LISBON — Dr. William Kolozi, Columbiana County coroner, has ruled the gun death of David P. Gearing, 17, of Salineville on Sept. 9 was accidental.

But Why Is Anyone Surprised?

Testimony by a defected Soviet naval officer before the House Committee on un-American Activities that the Kremlin would launch a surprise nuclear attack if it thought it could win has been a sensation in Washington.

Meanwhile, another sensation has been caused by an East German army officer who fled to West Germany with evidence that the East German army is being drilled for all-out attack on West Germany.

The effect of the two stories is to add to the sense of impending violence that hangs heavily over the spirit of western mankind. But why is anyone surprised?

What is new about testimony by a Russian who has been in this country since last year that the Soviet Union would attack the United States with nuclear weapons if it thought it could win?

Hasn't that been the supposition of the U.S. Defense Department, the White House, the State Department and Congress since the Soviet Union began to prepare for World War III while everybody else was hastening to disarm after the end of World War II? Isn't that why Americans have been paying taxes at wartime rates and trying to bolster up the defenses of their allies as well as their own?

And if it hasn't been the supposition of military planners that West Germany would be picked like a plum by military invaders from East Germany, why have the Western Allies maintained large armies of occupation in West Germany? Why are American draftees sent to West Germany for garrison duty?

The American people have a great capacity for being astonished by the obvious. When the U2 incident hit the news last May, it was received as though no American ever had heard of high-altitude reconnaissance or thought of the probability his government would find out as much about the Soviet Union as its agents know about the United States.

The sold purpose of everything that has been done to offset Russian military strength since the end of World War II has been to convince Russian militarists that war would be national suicide. If this hadn't been successful, World War III now would be in full blast and survivors would be living in holes in the ground.

When Nothing Is Under Control

Drawing morals from chaos in the Republic of Congo has been too easy. But if one of the chaotic Congolese, Patrice Lumumba, belatedly understands why there is no future in chaos, there may be better days ahead.

Finally, it was Lumumba, himself, who had to be fished out of the muddy waters he had been helping the Soviet Union to stir up.

His rescue from mobs that intended to string him up by the neck should have cooled off his ardor for revolutionary confusion by 50 per cent. In the few seconds he presumably spent reviewing his life before he was extricated from the ultimate complication that awaits public figures who stir up their people, he must have prayed for law and order.

It is like stirring up a hive of bees. The results are unpredictable. They may be embarrassing to an opponent, but they also can be embarrassing to the instigator of the terror. When nothing is under control, everything is in danger.

The story is there in the history books, repeated endlessly. It is in the news of the contemporary world. It is unfolding in the Congo, in Cuba and in every other place where leaders with revolutionary ardor stir up the people for the sake of watching them shout and fight.

Sooner or later, they pounce on the irritation that has been infuriating him. They almost had Lumumba, who was saved twice, according to the sketchy information coming out of the Congo—once by United Nations troops from Ghana, once by the police force of Col. Joseph Mobutu, latest of the "strong men" to be emerging from Congolese confusion.

Law and order never looked so good to the Congo's leading red-hot.

Friend In Need

For being a friend in need, a member of the East Liverpool Police Department has received a heart-felt "thank you" from a resident of Pittsburgh.

The following, received at The Review Friday, tells the story:

"This letter is from a few very grateful visitors to your fair city on Aug. 27.

"Coming to your town to pay our last respects to a dear friend, we arrived late Saturday night to find all the floral shops closed. In great despair, we asked Officer William Tice if he knew of any such shops that would be open. Officer Tice made phone call after phone call, finally finding one for our needs.

"This officer surely is a credit to your town of East Liverpool, or any other town. Instead of leaving your town in a confused manner, Officer Tice helped these visitors leave feeling very content to have met such a helpful and respectful an officer of your police force."

The letter is signed by Frances McGortey of 1787 Perrysville Ave., Pittsburgh.

Mr. Tice has set an excellent example of how an officer should conduct himself under such circumstances.

Progress In Moral Desegregation

Schools again are having tension over desegregation in areas where the practice of segregation has been common. But in 1960 it is unlikely there will be serious trouble.

No community with a segregation problem wants to be turned into another Little Rock by extremism. Every community with a segregation problem now contains at least a few knowledgeable leading citizens who have comprehended what is possible under a policy of gradual desegregation.

Except in the most obdurate communities there is no need for tension, no excuse for violence. The first step to be taken is moral desegregation, and it can be taken without precipitating mob violence. It requires no more than a token surrender by the community to the constitutional principle that Negroes cannot be denied any right of citizenship by virtue of their color.

This amounts in practice to the collapse of a doctrine long defended by southern lawyers, that the Constitution did not mean what it said in its 14th amendment and that this had been entrenched so firmly in legal precedent that educational segregation never could be challenged.

The challenge was made. The U.S. Supreme Court affirmed that the Constitution cannot be set aside as an accommodation to a region, a point of view, or even an established practice.

It did not affirm that physical segregation could be abolished by edict. But its effect has been to deny there is any moral or constitutional basis for segregation; that those who practice it are in clear violation of the Constitution.

As such things go in the mills of the legalists, that's sensational progress.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

An automatic post office, with electric-brain handling and distribution of mail is being opened in Providence, R. I. Your letter will now get in the WRONG box without the touch of human hands. If note to your Aunt Mamie in Penobscot, Me., gets to somebody's uncle in Galveston, Texas, it will be an error in electronics.

The Post Office Department is also experimenting with a system which electrically reads and transmits letter to destination in less than one second. This can kill romance. In a mechanical mixup we can fancy business communication and love note getting merged and coming out!

Millicent X. Bush, Jr.: General Manager Federated Steel Corp.: I adore you and am forwarding the carload of iron pots with love and kisses.

I can't sleep because you are ever in my thoughts which will be sent to you f.o.b. as requested, with 10 per cent off for cash, my darling. Etc., etc.

But it is the Providence mechanized post office that interests us. Mechanization should make a post office into a pretty cold place, eliminating the warm, human, chummy mood once dominant.

The post office was a sort of public meeting place, featuring smiles, greetings and gossip. The stamp clerks were fellows you knew for years by first names. You could get a distant view of the postmaster to see if he was on the job or out on a political campaign.

Engineers had nothing to do with the post office and it was untouched by science. No buttons, no gears, no gadgets. Just people, mail and bad pens.

Will the mechanical brain take care of those pens? Has science taken hold so that when one gets useless a light is flashed, a bell rung and a hi-fi recording played?

KHRUSHCHEV will be limited to Manhattan Island. If he blew up over Disneyland, how will he feel if he can't see Coney Island, Palisades Park and the new Aqueduct Race Track. The limitation guarantees Nikita an exclusive Broadway run, and he may call it an imperialistic plot if he can't give special matinees.

The famous painting of Paul Revere's Ride in Old North Church may be lost to the church and sold at auction unless $14,000 price can be raised. Paul Revere Painting Fund of Boston, is trying to raise the money, and, as did Revere, should "win galloping."

Educators in many cities are debating the question whether high school kids, driving their own cars to school, can do so without harm to school standing. General opinion seems to be that the lure of fun, speed and excitement is too much, and that what is needed is more "horsepower" in parents and educators, assuring sufficient power to make a firm "NO" take the hills.

Tito and Nasser will be among those at the U.N. visit. It looks like greatest spectacle since Buffalo Bill's Congress of the Rough Riders of the World.

In London a lady got out of a chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce and carted a bag of "wash" into a laundromat where she did it herself. That's what we call thrift in the extravagant manner.

The 20th Century - Fox studio lot is to be made into a de luxe apartment project by Bill Zeckendorf and Aluminum Co. of America, with aluminum a feature in construction. Ghosts of scores of old time movie stars should float about the premises, and maybe tenants will get a choice. Maybe there will be a tablet "So-and-So, the famous director slept here," to mark an especially bad picture career.

The Power Of Faith

by Howard Brodie

Gen. Henry Martyn Robert, a devout Christian who built the great sea wall at Galveston, Tex., possessed the methodical mind of an engineer. He was dismayed at the disorder that prevailed at public meetings, particularly those of his church, for there was no standard procedure to govern assemblies in the late 19th Century. And so he devoted many years to perfecting Robert's Rules of Order, which are still in use today. Gen. Robert helped finance publication of his book and devoted the profits of a later book to medical missions. He once refused payment for a college lecture saying: "I have had all the compensation I expect or desire in the consciousness that I have done what I could to stimulate the students to study the Bible. A man who knows anything is in debt to those who are less fortunate and he can only pay the debt by imparting the knowledge."

Red Labor Saboteurs Set To Go

By Victor Riesel

A Soviet controlled propaganda and political sabotage agency, which has trained hundreds of labor specialists to battle the United States in the Far East, in Africa, in the Caribbean and Cuba and in South America, soon will be operating out of the United Nations building.

Victor Riesel

Official World Federation of Trade Unions (WFTU) with global headquarters in Prague, it has appointed an American citizen to head its New York bureau.

This must be accepted by the United States, for the WFTU has legal advisory status in the U.N.

Its American agent will be a writer by the name of Philip Marshall Connelly. His record of pro-Communist activity in Los Angeles and elsewhere on the West Coast is as long as an old-fashioned railroad ticket.

Connnelly has worked for the Communist newspaper, "People's World," since 1949.

INTELLIGENCE SOURCES believe that Connelly's appointment is about as casual as a yearly timetable.

It was announced in Communist circles about the same moment Chairman Khrushchev decided to hold an international Communist convention in Manhattan.

For almost a year now the WFTU U.N. headquarters has been shut. Last November word came from Prague to the New York office to dispose of its files and rid itself of its director, a lady by the name of Elinor Kahn. That was in the Russians' soft period.

But since then the WFTU helped plan the Tokyo street riots which forced the Japanese government to ask President Eisenhower not to visit.

WFTU military agents have helped Fidel Castro take over the Cuban labor movement and train workers' militia there.

Not the least of its assignments has been the training of African union men to divide the anti-Communist, pro - Western labor movements of such new lands as the Congo.

Typical of the WFTU's direct action programs, for example, is what its agents did in Nigeria.

There are 38 million people in the new Republic of Nigeria. The unions there are small but influential. They've supplied most of the skilled men now running the new government.

THESE MEN are friendly to the West and we count heavily on them and they count on the unions there to bolster their strength.

These unions are called the Trades Union Congress of Nigeria (TUCN).

Last week I talked at length with its leader, L.L. Borha.

He disclosed how the Soviet global labor network has sent trained agents in and how they had split his pro-Western movement by organizing a Communist labor federation called the Nigerian Trades Union Congress—the NTUC.

If the Communists are successful in deceiving the still untrained and still quasi-literate Nigerian worker into thinking that NTUC really is the TUCN, Western democracy will have lost.

The Communists, operating through the WFTU, will use their skill and money to seize the Nigerian government by direct labor action—and we will lose a land of 38 million people while everybody's watching the noisier Congo.

Just what the WFTU's United Nations headquarters' new assignment will be, only the Soviets know, of course. But there are clues.

There will be a great influx of African and Latin American leaders into the U.N. Many of them are former labor officials such as Sekou Toure, president of Guinea.

PRESIDENT TOURE was trained in a WFTU school in Prague some years ago. Others went to the WFTU school in Budapest, where it has been turning out agents since 1953.

The primary tools for implementation of Soviet policy in Africa and Latin America are the affiliated unions and Communist indoctrinated trade unionists. It is only natural that they will gyrate around the WFTU which gave scores of them a start.

It is, of course, the privilege of the WFTU to operate inside the U.N. But we can, at least, see to it that it operates under a publicity spotlight which will keep it out of the shadows.

U.S. Code Still Safe

By David Barnett

The "brains" that transmit government messages in secret codes have taken in stride the defection of two U.S. cryptologists to the Soviet Union.

The "brains" are electronic computing devices that can turn a message into any one of an almost infinite variety of gibberish and back into English as fast as a man can talk.

According to a Pentagon expert, the defection of Vernon Mitchell and William Martin has not required any change in the coding operation.

THE DEFENSE DEPARTMENT expert made these points:

1. The mathematical theory behind the use of computers for coding is common knowledge in all countries. Machine codes cannot be broken without other machines, which the Soviets already have.

2. As standard routine, the "codes" of the coding machines are changed often—sometimes before even one message is completed. This merely requires a man to pull a switch.

3. Using similar machines, codes can be cracked by an "exhaustion attack" testing each element in the coded message against each possible element in the original language until the cryptogram makes sense.

But this takes time. Even if successful, the time lag may make the information obtained useless and the exercise does not help future code-breaking because of the frequent changing of the code.

The expert points out that theoretically, a machine code can be devised that can be demonstrated mathematically to be unbreakable —a system with such an incredible order of complexity that there is never a repeat in it.

By "repeat," the expert means the use of the same signal more than once to stand for the same word, letter or group of words in a message.

The Defense Department experts are reasonably sure neither Mitchell nor Martin could give the Soviets useful information on code books. Their jobs involved the use of computers to try to break Russian machine coded message intercepted by radio listening posts.

The Pentagon expert did not, however, minimize the possible importance of the defections in other fields. The two men, who were employed by the National Security Agency, may be able to give the Soviets an accurate picture of the U.S. eavesdropping net.

The Evaded Issue

By David Lawrence

Candidates Ignore Railroad Strike Issue

Neither presidential candidate will discuss the problem—because both are afraid to antagonize one side or the other politically—yet it's of paramount importance to the country. It involves a simple question: Why was there a strike on the Pennsylvania Railroad?

David Lawrence

Everybody knows who lost the strike— the public. Untold millions of dollars of damage was done to the business of countless bystanders who were not parties to the dispute. Hardships were imposed on individuals who were unable to travel because the railroad was shut down.

The federal government stood by helpless. Not a single law on the statute books authorizes the executive branch of the government to act.

Congress was in session when the strike was threatened and knew that there were no laws available to take care of the public interest. Yet nothing was done.

Now, when the strike is over, Michael Quill, the union leader, claims victory and the board chairman of the Pennsylvania Railroad says, "This strike should never have happened" and that Quill "finally made an agreement that he could have had without a strike."

But when a devastating strike of this kind happens, there usually is no post mortem. The public never finds out just who is to blame and whether the strike really could have been avoided.

Efforts to get at the truth are usually blocked by the desire of both parties in a strike to let bygones be bygones and not to stir up new antagonisms.

THIS TIME the management side has issued a statement which plainly says that whatever was granted will not cost the railroads more than a million dollars a year and that what was offered before the strike amounted to approximately the same figure.

The railroads had strike insurance financed by other railroads to help them cut down their losses during the strike, while the union members had strike benefits of their own awarded them from a federal fund financed by a special tax levied on the railroads.

Under the circumstances, it is amazing to find that the labor leaders of the country have been silent.

They have not denounced the failure of the union to accept arbitration or fact-finding boards that would come up with binding recommendations for settlement.

Yet this is one of the few procedures still available to bring into play the processes of reason.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, although previously opposed to compulsory arbitration, was willing in the months preceding the strike to accept the verdict of an impartial judge and to be bound by the settlement. Michael Quill refused.

Yet when two citizens are involved in a dispute as to compensation under a contract, they go to court and find themselves bound by a form of compulsory arbitration.

The railroads are a "regulated monopoly." The rates for passenger and freight traffic are set by the federal government's agency known as the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Since the railroads' income is thus fixed by governmental authority, it has often been asked why their wage costs should not also be fixed the same way. But nobody wants to see wage or price controls extended any further than is absolutely necessary.

Will the arbitrariness of a single union leader, however, cause Congress now to enact legislation making arbitration compulsory or giving the federal government the power to seize the railroads in order to keep them in operation for the benefit of the public?

JUST WHAT was settled by the strike? There is reason to believe that the union got very little more than it would have gotten had it settled the controversy without a strike.

In fact, it is said that 95 per cent of what appears in the final settlement was offered by the railroad before the strike began. In the main, what was added to the final document was a formula for settling disputes on certain work rules.

The issues were not the ordinary ones. What was in dispute was not wages but the right of the railroad to manage its own business. The unions demanded that certain work be done by them rather than be farmed out to outside companies.

It is well known that some of the larger businesses, such as the General Motors Diesel Division, can do certain work far more cheaply than the Pennsylvania Railroad can do it in its own shops.

Doesn't a management have the right to get work done at the lowest possible prices? The union doesn't think so. It employed the power of a costly strike to try to force the railroad into acceptance of its demands.

But the final agreement that was made doesn't take away the right of the railroad to farm out its maintenance work. It merely requires the railroad to show that there is a substantial benefit to it in having the work done outside and that costs in its own shops cannot meet outside competition.

THEN THERE WAS a dispute between two unions as to their jurisdictions. The railroad agreed in the end to abide by what the two rival unions should decide but with a provision that two men would not be permitted to do the same work.

There were a number of other minor issues but every offer of really vital importance that was made by the railroad before the strike was accepted by the union in the final settlement.

Was all this worth a strike? And how can the American people obtain redress for the damages inflicted by a labor-union leader who refused to submit the issues to an impartial tribunal in order to avoid a strike?

Congress will certainly have to answer this and whoever is elected president will have to take a stand after next January.

But it is tragic that generalities and abstractions in the campaign speeches are given the voters instead of some positive statements on vital issues such as the right to damage private property.

The Odd-Balls

By Truman Twill

Maybe too much attention is being paid in this peanut gallery to educational policies and practices.

The excuse is that I am an inhibited school teacher descended from a line of teachers and associated in my living with one schoolteacher who is my wife, another who is my son and a baker's dozen of others who are my friends.

Besides this, I find education engrossing and can talk freely about it, because I have little education myself, no reliable knowledge of what is being done by educators and no preconceived ideas about what they should do. I can write and speak freely, thanks to ignorance.

Tens of thousands of hearts were heavy this fall because young men and women either did not go away to college, or because they went to colleges that were not their choice.

This heartache one of the byproducts of a process of selectivity by which schools with prestige weed out applicants on whom they do not choose to gamble.

The schools do not claim to have a fool-proof formula. They mix a certain amount of pure guesswork with their educated guesswork. But they have the option to exclude many more students than they can include, and they are making the most of it.

One thing bothers me—an impression I retain from reading and hearing about men and women who have attained distinction.

My impression is that most of them would not have been among those considered most likely to succeed in school under today's standards.

The qualities that were to serve them well in their search for success would have handicapped them as would-be students if there had been the kind of competition there is today.

They were oddballs, screwballs, lint-pickers, day-dreamers, nonconformists, iconoclasts and goof-offs.

They did not have the look, feel, smell, or air of success about them. They were shaggy, harebrained, over-aggressive, under-aggressive and maladjusted.

The exceptions who proved the rule were smooth, suave, diligent, marvelously adjusted and wonderfully compatible. And the exceptions, being exceptional, were chosen as those most likely to succeed, whereas nobody gave the oddballs a second thought.

Years later, though, when the chips were counted, the oddballs were commonly the pride of institutions that either hadn't given them a look when they were young or that had suffered through their ineptitude as students. They become the recipients of honorary degrees and other encomiums.

This bothers me, because I fear the selectivity process is going to rule out most potential Einsteins and Churchills—the kind of people who don't fit into conventional categories but become, by that token, contributors to new thought and progressive action.

I think it may be necessary to start a new school—Oddball U., catering to kids who can't be squeezed through the standard meshes in today's educational screening process.

But Why Is Anyone Surprised?

Testimony by a defected Soviet naval officer before the House Committee on un-American Activities that the Kremlin would launch a surprise nuclear attack if it thought it could win has been a sensation in Washington.

Meanwhile, another sensation has been caused by an East German army officer who fled to West Germany with evidence that the East German army is being drilled for all-out attack on West Germany.

The effect of the two stories is to add to the sense of impending violence that hangs heavily over the spirit of western mankind. But why is anyone surprised?

What is new about testimony by a Russian who has been in this country since last year that the Soviet Union would attack the United States with nuclear weapons if it thought it could win?

Hasn't that been the supposition of the U.S. Defense Department, the White House, the State Department and Congress since the Soviet Union began to prepare for World War III while everybody else was hastening to disarm after the end of World War II? Isn't that why Americans have been paying taxes at wartime rates and trying to bolster up the defenses of their allies as well as their own?

And if it hasn't been the supposition of military planners that West Germany would be picked like a plum by military invaders from East Germany, why have the Western Allies maintained large armies of occupation in West Germany? Why are American draftees sent to West Germany for garrison duty?

The American people have a great capacity for being astonished by the obvious. When the U2 incident hit the news last May, it was received as though no American ever had heard of high-altitude reconnaissance or thought of the probability his government would find out as much about the Soviet Union as its agents know about the United States.

The sold purpose of everything that has been done to offset Russian military strength since the end of World War II has been to convince Russian militarists that war would be national suicide. If this hadn't been successful, World War III now would be in full blast and survivors would be living in holes in the ground.

When Nothing Is Under Control

Drawing morals from chaos in the Republic of Congo has been too easy. But if one of the chaotic Congolese, Patrice Lumumba, belatedly understands why there is no future in chaos, there may be better days ahead.

Finally, it was Lumumba, himself, who had to be fished out of the muddy waters he had been helping the Soviet Union to stir up.

His rescue from mobs that intended to string him up by the neck should have cooled off his ardor for revolutionary confusion by 50 per cent. In the few seconds he presumably spent reviewing his life before he was extricated from the ultimate complication that awaits public figures who stir up their people, he must have prayed for law and order.

It is like stirring up a hive of bees. The results are unpredictable. They may be embarrassing to an opponent, but they also can be embarrassing to the instigator of the terror. When nothing is under control, everything is in danger.

The story is there in the history books, repeated endlessly. It is in the news of the contemporary world. It is unfolding in the Congo, in Cuba and in every other place where leaders with revolutionary ardor stir up the people for the sake of watching them shout and fight.

Sooner or later, they pounce on the irritation that has been infuriating him. They almost had Lumumba, who was saved twice, according to the sketchy information coming out of the Congo—once by United Nations troops from Ghana, once by the police force of Col. Joseph Mobutu, latest of the "strong men" to be emerging from Congolese confusion.

Law and order never looked so good to the Congo's leading red-hot.

Friend In Need

For being a friend in need, a member of the East Liverpool Police Department has received a heart-felt "thank you" from a resident of Pittsburgh.

The following, received at The Review Friday, tells the story:

"This letter is from a few very grateful visitors to your fair city on Aug. 27.

"Coming to your town to pay our last respects to a dear friend, we arrived late Saturday night to find all the floral shops closed. In great despair, we asked Officer William Tice if he knew of any such shops that would be open. Officer Tice made phone call after phone call, finally finding one for our needs.

"This officer surely is a credit to your town of East Liverpool, or any other town. Instead of leaving your town in a confused manner, Officer Tice helped these visitors leave feeling very content to have met such a helpful and respectful an officer of your police force."

The letter is signed by Frances McGortey of 1787 Perrysville Ave., Pittsburgh.

Mr. Tice has set an excellent example of how an officer should conduct himself under such circumstances.

Progress In Moral Desegregation

Schools again are having tension over desegregation in areas where the practice of segregation has been common. But in 1960 it is unlikely there will be serious trouble.

No community with a segregation problem wants to be turned into another Little Rock by extremism. Every community with a segregation problem now contains at least a few knowledgeable leading citizens who have comprehended what is possible under a policy of gradual desegregation.

Except in the most obdurate communities there is no need for tension, no excuse for violence. The first step to be taken is moral desegregation, and it can be taken without precipitating mob violence. It requires no more than a token surrender by the community to the constitutional principle that Negroes cannot be denied any right of citizenship by virtue of their color.

This amounts in practice to the collapse of a doctrine long defended by southern lawyers, that the Constitution did not mean what it said in its 14th amendment and that this had been entrenched so firmly in legal precedent that educational segregation never could be challenged.

The challenge was made. The U.S. Supreme Court affirmed that the Constitution cannot be set aside as an accommodation to a region, a point of view, or even an established practice.

It did not affirm that physical segregation could be abolished by edict. But its effect has been to deny there is any moral or constitutional basis for segregation; that those who practice it are in clear violation of the Constitution.

As such things go in the mills of the legalists, that's sensational progress.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

An automatic post office, with electric-brain handling and distribution of mail is being opened in Providence, R. I. Your letter will now get in the WRONG box without the touch of human hands. If note to your Aunt Mamie in Penobscot, Me., gets to somebody's uncle in Galveston, Texas, it will be an error in electronics.

The Post Office Department is also experimenting with a system which electrically reads and transmits letter to destination in less than one second. This can kill romance. In a mechanical mixup we can fancy business communication and love note getting merged and coming out!

Millicent X. Bush, Jr.: General Manager Federated Steel Corp.: I adore you and am forwarding the carload of iron pots with love and kisses.

I can't sleep because you are ever in my thoughts which will be sent to you f.o.b. as requested, with 10 per cent off for cash, my darling. Etc., etc.

But it is the Providence mechanized post office that interests us. Mechanization should make a post office into a pretty cold place, eliminating the warm, human, chummy mood once dominant.

The post office was a sort of public meeting place, featuring smiles, greetings and gossip. The stamp clerks were fellows you knew for years by first names. You could get a distant view of the postmaster to see if he was on the job or out on a political campaign.

Engineers had nothing to do with the post office and it was untouched by science. No buttons, no gears, no gadgets. Just people, mail and bad pens.

Will the mechanical brain take care of those pens? Has science taken hold so that when one gets useless a light is flashed, a bell rung and a hi-fi recording played?

KHRUSHCHEV will be limited to Manhattan Island. If he blew up over Disneyland, how will he feel if he can't see Coney Island, Palisades Park and the new Aqueduct Race Track. The limitation guarantees Nikita an exclusive Broadway run, and he may call it an imperialistic plot if he can't give special matinees.

The famous painting of Paul Revere's Ride in Old North Church may be lost to the church and sold at auction unless $14,000 price can be raised. Paul Revere Painting Fund of Boston, is trying to raise the money, and, as did Revere, should "win galloping."

Educaters in many cities are debating the question whether high school kids, driving their own cars to school, can do so without harm to school standing. General opinion seems to be that the lure of fun, speed and excitement is too much, and that what is needed is more "horsepower" in parents and educators, assuring sufficient power to make a firm "NO" take the hills."

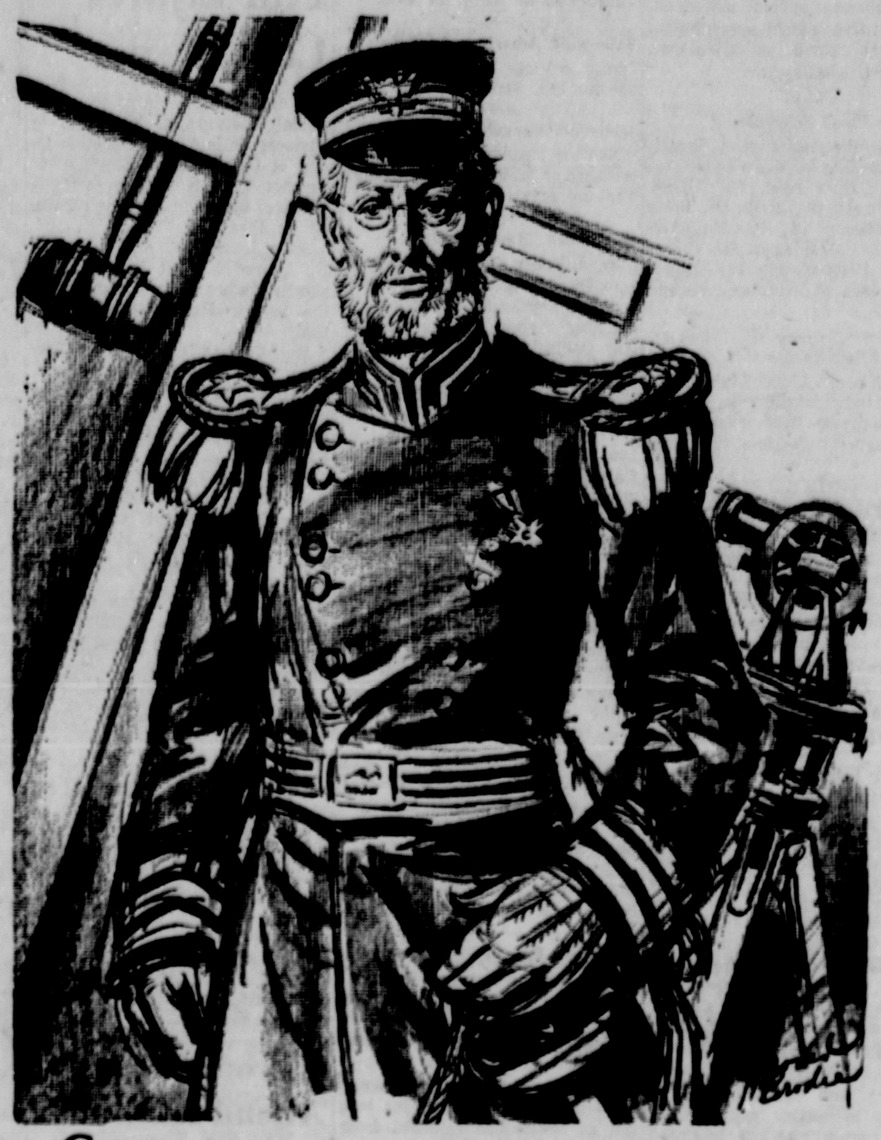

Tito and Nasser will be among those at the U.N. visit. It looks like greatest spectacle since Buffalo Bill's Congress of the Rough Riders of the World.

In London a lady got out of a chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce and carted a bag of "wash" into a laundromat where she did it herself. That's what we call thrift in the extravagant manner.

The 20th Century - Fox studio lot is to be made into a de luxe apartment project by Bill Zeckendorf and Aluminum Co. of America, with aluminum a feature in construction. Ghosts of scores of old time movie stars should float about the premises, and maybe tenants will get a choice. Maybe there will be a tablet "So-and-So, the famous director slept here," to mark an especially bad picture career.

The Power Of Faith

by Howard Brodie

Gen. Henry Martyn Robert, a devout Christian who built the great sea wall at Galveston, Tex., possessed the methodical mind of an engineer. He was dismayed at the disorder that prevailed at public meetings, particularly those of his church, for there was no standard procedure to govern assemblies in the late 19th Century. And so he devoted many years to perfecting Robert's Rules of Order, which are still in use today. Gen. Robert helped finance publication of his book and devoted the profits of a later book to medical missions. He once refused payment for a college lecture saying: "I have had all the compensation I expect or desire in the consciousness that I have done what I could to stimulate the students to study the Bible. A man who knows anything is in debt to those who are less fortunate and he can only pay the debt by imparting the knowledge."

Red Labor Saboteurs Set To Go

By Victor Riesel

A Soviet controlled propaganda and political sabotage agency, which has trained hundreds of labor specialists to battle the United States in the Far East, in Africa, in the Caribbean and Cuba and in South America, soon will be operating out of the United Nations building.

Victor Riesel

Official World Federation of Trade Unions (WFTU) with global headquarters in Prague, it has appointed an American citizen to head its New York bureau.

This must be accepted by the United States, for the WFTU has legal advisory status in the U.N.

Its American agent will be a writer by the name of Philip Marshall Connelly. His record of pro-Communist activity in Los Angeles and elsewhere on the West Coast is as long as an old-fashioned railroad ticket.

Connelly has worked for the Communist newspaper, "People's World," since 1949.

INTELLIGENCE SOURCES believe that Connelly's appointment is about as casual as a yearly timetable.

It was announced in Communist circles about the same moment Chairman Khrushchev decided to hold an international Communist convention in Manhattan.

For almost a year now the WFTU U.N. headquarters has been shut. Last November word came from Prague to the New York office to dispose of its files and rid itself of its director, a lady by the name of Elinor Kahn. That was in the Russians' soft period.

But since then the WFTU helped plan the Tokyo street riots which forced the Japanese government to ask President Eisenhower not to visit.

WFTU military agents have helped Fidel Castro take over the Cuban labor movement and train workers' militia there.

Not the least of its assignments has been the training of African union men to divide the anti-Communist, pro-Western labor movements of such new lands as the Congo.

Typical of the WFTU's direct action programs, for example, is what its agents did in Nigeria.

There are 36 million people in the new Republic of Nigeria. The unions there are small but influential. They've supplied most of the skilled men now running the new government.

THESE MEN are friendly to the West and we count heavily on them and they count on the unions there to bolster their strength.

These unions are called the Trades Union Congress of Nigeria (TUCN).

Last week I talked at length with its leader, L.L. Borha.

He disclosed how the Soviet global labor network has sent trained agents in and how they had split his pro-Western movement by organizing a Communist labor federation called the Nigerian Trades Union Congress—the NTUC.

If the Communists are successful in deceiving the still untrained and still quasi-literate Nigerian worker into thinking that NTUC really is the TUCN, Western democracy will have lost.

The Communists, operating through the WFTU, will use their skill and money to seize the Nigerian government by direct labor action—and we will lose a land of 36 million people while everybody's watching the noisier Congo.

Just what the WFTU's United Nations headquarters' new assignment will be, only the Soviets know, of course. But there are clues.

There will be a great influx of African and Latin American leaders into the U.N. Many of them are former labor officials such as Sekou Toure, president of Guinea.

PRESIDENT TOURE was trained in a WFTU school in Prague some years ago. Others went to the WFTU school in Budapest, where it has been turning out agents since 1953.

The primary tools for implementation of Soviet policy in Africa and Latin America are the affiliated unions and Communist indoctrinated trade unionists. It is only natural that they will gyrate around the WFTU which gave scores of them a start.

It is, of course, the privilege of the WFTU to operate inside the U.N. But we can, at least, see to it that it operates under a publicity spotlight which will keep it out of the shadows.

U.S. Code Still Safe

By David Barnett

The "brains" that transmit government messages in secret codes have taken in stride the defection of two U.S. cryptologists to the Soviet Union.

The "brains" are electronic computing devices that can turn a message into any one of an almost infinite variety of gibberish and back into English as fast as a man can talk.

According to a Pentagon expert, the defection of Vernon Mitchell and William Martin has not required any change in the coding operation.

THE DEFENSE DEPARTMENT expert made these points:

1. The mathematical theory behind the use of computers for coding is common knowledge in all countries. Machine codes cannot be broken without other machines, which the Soviets already have.

2. As standard routine, the "codes" of the coding machines are changed often—sometimes before even one message is completed. This merely requires a man to pull a switch.

3. Using similar machines, codes can be cracked by an "exhaustion attack" testing each element in the coded message against each possible element in the original language until the cryptogram makes sense.

But this takes time. Even if successful, the time lag may make the information obtained useless and the exercise does not help future code-breaking because of the frequent changing of the code.

The expert points out that theoretically, a machine code can be devised that can be demonstrated mathematically to be unbreakable—a system with such an incredible order of complexity that there is never a repeat in it.

By "repeat," the expert means the use of the same signal more than once to stand for the same word, letter or group of words in a message.

The Defense Department experts are reasonably sure neither Mitchell nor Martin could give the Soviets useful information on code books. Their jobs involved the use of computers to try to break Russian machine coded message intercepted by radio listening posts.

The Pentagon expert did not, however, minimize the possible importance of the defections in other fields. The two men, who were employed by the National Security Agency, may be able to give the Soviets an accurate picture of the U.S. eavesdropping net.

The Evaded Issue

By David Lawrence

Candidates Ignore Railroad Strike Issue

Neither presidential candidate will discuss the problem—because both are afraid to antagonize one side or the other politically—yet it's of paramount importance to the country. It involves a simple question: Why was there a strike on the Pennsylvania Railroad?

David Lawrence

Everybody knows who lost the strike—the public. Untold millions of dollars of damage was done to the business of countless bystanders who were not parties to the dispute. Hardships were imposed on individuals who were unable to travel because the railroad was shut down.

The federal government stood by helpless. Not a single law on the statute books authorizes the executive branch of the government to act.

Congress was in session when the strike was threatened and knew that there were no laws available to take care of the public interest. Yet nothing was done.

Now, when the strike is over, Michael Quill, the union leader, claims victory and the board chairman of the Pennsylvania Railroad says, "This strike should never have happened" and that Quill "finally made an agreement that he could have had without a strike."

But when a devastating strike of this kind happens, there usually is no post mortem. The public never finds out just who is to blame and whether the strike really could have been avoided.

Efforts to get at the truth are usually blocked by the desire of both parties in a strike to let bygones be bygones and not to stir up new antagonisms.

THIS TIME the management side has issued a statement which plainly says that whatever was granted will not cost the railroads more than a million dollars a year and that what was offered before the strike amounted to approximately the same figure.

The railroads had strike insurance financed by other railroads to help them cut down their losses during the strike, while the union members had strike benefits of their own awarded them from a federal fund financed by a special tax levied on the railroads.

Under the circumstances, it is amazing to find that the labor leaders of the country have been silent.

They have not denounced the failure of the union to accept arbitration or fact-finding boards that would come up with binding recommendations for settlement.

Yet this is one of the few procedures still available to bring into play the processes of reason.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, although previously opposed to compulsory arbitration, was willing in the months preceding the strike to accept the verdict of an impartial judge and to be bound by the settlement. Michael Quill refused.

Yet when two citizens are involved in a dispute as to compensation under a contract, they go to court and find themselves bound by a form of compulsory arbitration.

The railroads are a "regulated monopoly." The rates for passenger and freight traffic are set by the federal government's agency known as the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Since the railroads' income is thus fixed by governmental authority, it has often been asked why their wage costs should not also be fixed the same way. But nobody wants to see wage or price controls extended any further than is absolutely necessary.

Will the arbitrariness of a single union leader, however, cause Congress now to enact legislation making arbitration compulsory or giving the federal government the power to seize the railroads in order to keep them in operation for the benefit of the public?

JUST WHAT was settled by the strike? There is reason to believe that the union got very little more than it would have gotten had it settled the controversy without a strike.

In fact, it is said that 95 per cent of what appears in the final settlement was offered by the railroad before the strike began. In the main, what was added to the final document was a formula for settling disputes on certain work rules.

The issues were not the ordinary ones. What was in dispute was not wages but the right of the railroad to manage its own business. The unions demanded that certain work be done by them rather than be farmed out to outside companies.

It is well known that some of the larger businesses, such as the General Motors Diesel Division, can do certain work far more cheaply than the Pennsylvania Railroad can do it in its own shops.

Doesn't a management have the right to get work done at the lowest possible prices? The union doesn't think so. It employed the power of a costly strike to try to force the railroad into acceptance of its demands.

But the final agreement that was made doesn't take away the right of the railroad to farm out its maintenance work. It merely requires the railroad to show that there is a substantial benefit to it in having the work done outside and that costs if its own shops cannot meet outside competition.

THEN THERE WAS a dispute between two unions as to their jurisdictions. The railroad agreed in the end to abide by what the two rival unions should decide but with a provision that two men would not be permitted to do the same work.

There were a number of other minor issues but every offer of really vital importance that was made by the railroad before the strike was accepted by the union in the final settlement.

Was all this worth a strike? And how can the American people obtain redress for the damages inflicted by a labor-union leader who refused to submit the issues to an impartial tribunal in order to avoid a strike?

Congress will certainly have to answer this and whoever is elected president will have to take a stand after next January.

But it is tragic that generalities and abstractions in the campaign speeches are given the voters instead of some positive statements on vital issues such as the right to damage private property.

Precision in a Pipe Organ

You know what precision it requires to build a bridge, or an engine, or a watch. The same exactness goes into the construction of a pipe organ.

But the men who make pipe organs, like all others who build, have a feeling for the USE of their product.

An organ will lead hundreds in their worship of God. It will support a talented choir in the rendition of a sacred cantata. Or it will blend with a host of untrained voices to raise a stirring hymn to God. It will sing softly while Christians commune, or thunder majestically a great recessional.

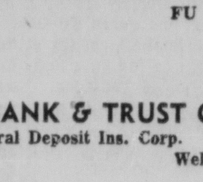

And yet this valuable organ whose creation requires such skill and precision is secondary in the life of the Church. It is simply an instrument, like this weekly advertisement, to help the Church fulfill its Mission. That Mission is to lead you, and your family, and your world, to the Lord.

When the organ calls men to worship — be there!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

But the men who make pipe organs, like all others who build, have a feeling for the USE of their product.

An organ will lead hundreds in their worship of God. It will support a talented choir in the rendition of a sacred cantata. Or it will blend with a host of untrained voices to raise a stirring hymn to God. It will sing softly while Christians commune, or thunder majestically a great recessional.

And yet this valuable organ whose creation requires such skill and precision is secondary in the life of the Church. It is simply an instrument, like this weekly advertisement, to help the Church fulfill its Mission. That Mission is to lead you, and your family, and your world, to the Lord.

When the organ calls men to worship — be there!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

4,000 See Potters Roll To 28-12 Victory Over Youngstown

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Following the final whistle Friday night, the East Liverpool Potters filed into their dressing room and displayed a huge sign which read "Youngstown South, remember last year!"

The Potters remembered! South edged them 14-12 a year ago, but last night at Patterson Field it was East Liverpool's turn for revenge. It came in the form of a 28-12 victory.

Some 4,000 fans, many in shirtsleeves at the beginning of the game, saw the Potters begin their long home stand with their first victory of the 1960 campaign.

EAST LIVERPOOL, small and without much speed, parlayed the passing of Kenny Cunningham and the running of Joe Thompson and John Goodballet into victory.

An outstanding performance by the Potter defense, mainly the center of the line, featuring Jim Ferello, Skip Hall, Joe Smith and Scotty Musuraca, bottled up the speedy Youngstown South backs.

Goodballet scored twice, Thompson once and Cunningham once—in the last 30 seconds.

Lou Venditti, all smiles after the contest, said "with a little speed we would have had a few more touchdowns."

The Potter coach was referring primarily to the fine manner in which Kenny Cunningham and Thompson were returning punts and kickoffs. But when they needed that extra bit of speed to outrace a trailing defender, it wasn't there.

Cunningham was hitting the target or coming close most of the time, but threw a little long on occasions. However, Venditti commented: "I would rather see them go long instead of short and be intercepted."

The coach heaped praise on Thompson for his outstanding defensive work and pass catching and declared that "Goodballet was terrific out there tonight."

CUNNINGHAM'S passing set up three touchdowns and the Potter quarterback scored the final TD himself.

Passing Sparks Attack; Goodballet Scores 2 Touchdowns

After East Liverpool kicked off, the Potters didn't get their hands on the ball again until 3:17 was left in the first period.

South ran 14 plays and marched 58 yards to the Potter one-yard line, from where hard-running fullback Ken Booker blasted through the middle for the first touchdown.

A pass for the extra points from Jimmy Jones to end Jim Washington was batted down.

Both teams were of a gambling nature. East Liverpool won its fourth-down gamble in the first quarter, but the Warriors lost when they attempted a fourth-down play from their own 41-yard line.

With fourth and one to go, Ferello, Smith and Hall stopped Booker cold and the Potters got their first break.

A Cunningham - to - Thompson pass was good for 19 yards and three plays later Thompson broke fumble on its own 22-yard line.

Booker did most of the ball carrying in the march for the Warriors. His biggest gain was a 23-yard romp. Speedy Jay Cunningham hit the middle for the touchdown from a yard out. Again a pass for the extra point failed.

Geon alertly intercepted a pass down the middle thrown by Jones. The Potter end returned the ball to the South 35.

Thompson, Goodballet and Allen Douglas alternated carries down to the South 4-yard line. Cunningham then rolled out to the right side and crashed into the end zone for the final tally with 30 seconds left.

Cunningham's pass for the extra points was knocked down.

He then broke the tie by running for the two extra points and an 8-6 lead.

East Liverpool almost ran out of time in the second quarter, but scored with 16 seconds remaining when Cunningham flipped a short flat pass to Goodballet, who took it in the two-yard line and crashed over for the second TD. The play covered five yards.

CUNNINGHAM and Archer set up the second touchdown with a 33-yard pass play. Archer made the catch of the night and brought the crowd to its feet.

With arms outstretched, he got his fingertips on the ball and pulled it in, falling on the South 5-yard line.

A pass for the extra points failed, but East Liverpool had a 14-6 margin at halftime.

'Hey, What's Going On?'

The Cunningham - to - Thompson combination wasted little time in moving the Potters to the South 5-yard line again in the third period. The pass play covered 38 yards and one play later Goodballet bulled his way the remaining five yards for the third TD with 9:01 left in the third quarter.

Cunningham fired to end Mike Geon for the two extra points, giving East Liverpool a 22-6 advantage.

Another sustained drive of 78 yards by the Warriors followed after South recovered Cunningham's

Miller flipped an 18-yard pass to halfback Jim Kiger to give New Cumberland a 6-0 lead in the first period. The Raiders added another in the third on Hennis' 11-yard dash.

New Cumberland chalked up two more touchdowns in the fourth quarter on Miller's pass to Hennis and a one-yard sweep around right end by fullback Ron Haynes.

Groza Retires As Pro Player

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns will go into their 1960 season without "the toe," the man who kicked them into their first National Football League title 10 years ago and who has scored more points than any other Browns player.

The 36-year-old Lou Groza bowed out as a player Friday. Groza has been bothered by back trouble.

He said he felt he wouldn't be much help to the Browns this year, and "it wouldn't be good to hang on."

Coach Paul Brown announced Groza's decision at a Touchdown Club luncheon, and the crowd of almost 1,000 gave Groza, an outstanding offensive tackle as well as a placekicker, a standing ovation.

Groza said his greatest thrill was the title-winning kick in 1950. That was the Brown's first year in the NFL, when they tied the New York Giants for the Eastern Division title. In the playoff game, Groza kicked the Browns to an 8-3 victory over the Giants.

Coach Fred Sims' Irons took to the airlanes for a third quarter touchdown and found themselves battling to escape a tie in the final period when the Mounties scored.

Mills, 170-pound junior, scored the important conversion on a plunge which decided the game.

Booker did most of the ball carrying in the march for the Warriors. His biggest gain was a 23-yard romp. Speedy Jay Cunningham hit the middle for the touchdown from a yard out. Again a pass for the extra point failed.

Geon alertly intercepted a pass down the middle thrown by Jones. The Potter end returned the ball to the South 35.

Thompson, Goodballet and Allen Douglas alternated carries down to the South 4-yard line. Cunningham then rolled out to the right side and crashed into the end zone for the final tally with 30 seconds left.

Cunningham's pass for the extra points was knocked down.

The Cunningham - to - Thompson combination wasted little time into the end zone from 8 yards out in moving the Potters to the South 5-yard line again in the third period. Cunningham fired to end Mike Geon for the two extra points, giving East Liverpool a 22-6 advantage.

Another sustained drive of 78 yards by the Warriors followed after South recovered Cunningham's fumble near the goal line. The ball was recovered in the end zone by a teammate, Brunner, for the touchdown.

Disappointing Newell managed a third-quarter touchdown and dropped its second game of the campaign.

Miller flipped an 18-yard pass to halfback Jim Kiger to give New Cumberland a 6-0 lead in the first period. The Raiders added another in the third on Hennis' 11-yard dash.

Groza Retires As Pro Player

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns will go into their 1960 season without "the toe," the man who kicked them into their first National Football League title 10 years ago and who has scored more points than any other Browns player.

The 36-year-old Lou Groza bowed out as a player Friday. Groza has been bothered by back trouble.

He said he felt he wouldn't be much help to the Browns this year, and "it wouldn't be good to hang on."

Coach Paul Brown announced Groza's decision at a Touchdown Club luncheon, and the crowd of almost 1,000 gave Groza, an outstanding offensive tackle as well as a placekicker, a standing ovation.

Groza said his greatest thrill was the title-winning kick in 1950. That was the Brown's first year in the NFL, when they tied the New York Giants for the Eastern Division title. In the playoff game, Groza kicked the Browns to an 8-3 victory over the Giants.

Coach Fred Sims' Irons took to the airlanes for a third quarter touchdown and found themselves battling to escape a tie in the final period when the Mounties scored.

Quarterback Bob Mills capped a Stanton march of 50 yards by flipping a short pass to halfback Stan Wickham who went over for the touchdown.

Mills, 170-pound junior, scored the important conversion on a plunge which decided the game.

Mount Pleasant drove 35 yards for its fourth period touchdown with Nichols crashing over from one-yard out with six minutes of playing time remaining. The Mounties gambled on a pass for the two-points conversion which would have tied the game. However, the pass fell incomplete.

Mills scooted 40 yards in the fourth quarter for a touchdown that was nullified because of a penalty charged against Stanton. The Irons also staged a goal-line stand in the third period.

Pirates Bow, Lead By 5½; Spahn Hurls No-Hitter At Phils

Cards Lose, Drop Into Third Place

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don't let those old-timers kid you, pal. If you've seen Warren Spahn pitch, you've seen the best left-hander baseball ever has known.

Warren the wonder hung up his 11th season of 20 victories with a flourish Friday night, pitching an almost perfect game in a 4-0 decision over Philadelphia that pushed Milwaukee's scrambling Braves into second place in the National League race, 5½ games shy of first-place Pittsburgh.

Pitching in an era of the lively ball, short fences and muscle guys, Spahn has won 287 games, 51 of them shutouts. There have been lefties who have won more and who have pitched more shutouts. But no National League lefthander has done it, and no major league southpaw ever has won 20 in 11 seasons.

While Spahn reduced his major league goals to one—300 victories—the Pirates lost a 4-3 decision at Cincinnati, and San Francisco rocked St. Louis 6-2, dropping the Cardinals to third place. Los Angeles defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-4 on Maury Wills' ninth-inning single in a day game.

In the American League, the New York Yankees took a one-game lead over Baltimore by beating the Orioles 4-2. Chicago's third-place White Sox fell three games back, losing 4-3 at Detroit. Washington defeated Boston 3-0, and Cleveland beat Kansas City 4-2.

Spahn, who has lost nine, struck out 15 and walked two while becoming the first to win 20 in the majors this season. He lost a perfect game when he walked Ken Walters in the fourth. He also walked Cal Neeman in the fifth, but finished strong, fanning four pinch hitters in the last two innings.

It was the third no-hitter of the season, all in the NL, and matched the August 18 performance of Lew Burdette, Spahn's roommate, against Philadelphia.

A double by Willie Jones and Gordy Coleman's single gave the Reds the winning run in the eighth against the Pirates. Reliever Jim Brosnan then saved it for lefty Jim O'Toole (12-11) by retiring Gino Cimoli after the Bucs scored with two out in the ninth on a walk and a pinch double by Smoky Burgess. Harvey Haddix (11-10) was the loser.

Orlando Cepeda and Willie Kirkland homered and each drove in two runs for the Giants, who whipped the Cards and lefty Curt Simmons (7-4) with five runs in the fourth. Stu Miller (7-6) was the winner in relief, although giving up home runs by Stan Musial and Charlie James.

SPAHNIE DOES IT. Warren Spahn, Braves' veteran left hander, adds a little to No. 20 over locker in dressing room after pitching a no-hitter Friday night against the Phillies at Milwaukee. Spahn became the first National League pitcher to win 20 games this year. (UPI Telephoto)

White Sox Lose To Tigers

Yanks Beat Orioles, 4-2, To Take One-Game Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two little lefties and two big bats have put the New York Yankees a game ahead of Baltimore in their weekend showdown for the American League lead—and perhaps the pennant.

Whitey Ford, struggling through his worst season but still Manager Casey Stengel's No. 1 guy in the clutch, and Bobby Shantz choked off the Orioles as the Yankees rode in with a 4-2 victory on home runs by Hector Lopez and Roger Maris Friday night.

It was the opener of a four-game series at Yankee Stadium and once more dropped the Orioles two games behind in the decisive "lost" column.

The Birds, with a dozen games left to play compared to the Yankees' 14, picked ace Chuck Estrada, a rookie with a 17-9 record, for this afternoon's game against Bob Turley (8-3). The series ends with a doubleheader Sunday.

The Yankees also moved three games ahead of the third-place Chicago White Sox. The defending champs lost the opener of a four-game set at Detroit 4-3.

Cleveland defeated Kansas City 4-2 and Washington beat Boston 3-0 on the five-hit pitching of winner Chuck Stobbs and Ray Moore.

In the National League, Warren Spahn pitched his first no-hit game, won his 20th and put Milwaukee in second place with a 4-0 decision over Philadelphia that pushed the Braves within 5½ games of first-place Pittsburgh. The Pirates lost 4-3 at Cincinnati, and San Francisco spilled St. Louis to third, 6-2, Los Angeles defeated Chicago's Cubs 5-4.

The Yankees, 10-9 for the season over the Orioles and 7-1 at Yankee Stadium, won this one when Shantz came on in the ninth with two out and the bases loaded, gave up a two-run single by Jim Busby and then struck out Marv Breeding on three pitches.

An eighth-inning home run by Harry Chiti—off White Sox relief ace Gerry Staley—cracked a 3-3 tie for the Tigers. The Sox were checked on five hits by Frank Lary (13-15). Early Wynn was the Sox starter, and scored the tying run in the seventh after Ted Kluszewski's short fly to center. But Wynn injured his elbow pitching and Staley (12-8) took over in the seventh.

The Indians' victory, Jim Perry's 17th, was settled by third-inning solo home runs by Mike de LaHoz, Johnny Romano and Tito Francona against Ned Garver (2-9). But triumph was marred by a bullpen argument between Negro right-hander Jim (Mudcat) Grant and Tribe coach Ted Wilks, who is white. Grant, who said Wilks made a racial slur against him, walked out of the park. He was suspended for the rest of the season by Manager Jimmy Dykes.

East Palestine Drops Opener

Fumbles Costly At Beaver In Bulldogs' 12-0 Defeat

BEAVER — East Palestine High fumbled away a basket of scoring opportunities and dropped its 1960 season opener Friday night at Beaver, 12-0.

Halfback Lawson Cashdollar scored both Beaver touchdowns, the first on a four-yard buck and another on a 40-yard end sweep.

East Palestine, considered a strong contender for the Tri-County League crown, fumbled several times in the third and fourth quarters when touchdowns were only a short distance away. The Bulldog drives halted outside the Beaver 20-yard stripe with each fumble.

East Palestine, playing a non-league opponent, jumps into Tri-County action next week at Sebring.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Jim (Mudcat) Grant, Cleveland pitcher, was suspended—without pay—for the rest of the season by Manager Jimmie Dykes Friday night when he walked off the field.

The departure during the game against Kansas City by Grant, a Negro, came after an argument in the bullpen with Coach Ted Wilks, who is white. Grant said Wilks called him a "black so-and-so." Wilks was not available for comment.

Cleveland, which broke the color barrier in the American League with the introduction of Larry Doby in 1947, has had several Negroes on its team. There never has been a racial incident.

Dykes said he first learned of the walkout when he called Wilks in the bullpen in the second inning to have Grant to warm up. Wilks told the manager that there had been an argument and that Grant had left.

"It seems that Grant made some remark about what a lousy country this is while the national anthem was being played," Dykes said. "Wilks answered him back and Grant said, 'I don't have to take that from anybody,' and took off."

Dykes said he walked from the dugout to the clubhouse during the second inning to see Grant, but the pitcher had already left the stadium.

"I suspended him because he didn't report to me," the manager explained. "There is just no excuse for what he did."

Reached at his home, Grant gave this explanation of his argument with Wilks:

"I was standing in the bullpen and singing along with the national anthem as I always do. When it got to that part 'home of the brave and land of the free,' I sang something like 'this land is not so free, I can't even go to Mississippi.' It was something like that and I sang it in fun."

Oregon State Topples USC

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The first astonishing upset of the new college football season reads in cold figures:

Oregon State 14, Southern California 0.

And so today there was unrestrained joy in the green hills of Oregon and, especially, the college town of Corvallis.

For the 19-point underdogs had felled the giant—and mangled him pretty well in the process.

Praise was showered on Coach Tommy Prothro, genius of the single-wing attack. He guided the Beavers, calling down most of the plays, from a wheelchair high above the Coliseum. A slipped disc in the back had virtually immobilized him.

But the popular Prothro, who used to plague the Trojans when he was an assistant at UCLA, directed all plaudits to his players.

"Signal calling didn't win this game," said Prothro. "The players won it with execution and desire."

The Beavers struck for a touchdown the first time they got the ball. They swept 64 yards in eight plays. The big gun was Don Kasso, 188-pound junior halfback, who raced off his left end for 16 yards and the six points.

Taking the kickoff at the second half, the Beavers traveled 71 yards in 10 plays. Most of this progress was in the air and on the arm of Terry Baker, a southpaw sophomore. He connected with three out of four passes for 50 of the yards.

Chuck Marshall, second - string fullback, banged through a hole at right guard for the final two yards. Tim Ankersen kicked his second extra point.

With the exception of national champion Syracuse, most of the top teams in the country got into action today and tonight.

Pirates Bow, Lead By 5½; Spahn Hurls No-Hitter At Phils

Cards Lose, Drop Into Third Place

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don't let those old-timers kid you, pal. If you've seen Warren Spahn pitch, you've seen the best left-hander baseball ever has known.

Warren the wonder hung up his 11th season of 20 victories with a flourish Friday night, pitching an almost perfect game in a 4-0 decision over Philadelphia that pushed Milwaukee's scrambling Braves into second place in the National League race, 5½ games shy of first-place Pittsburgh.

Pitching in an era of the lively ball, short fences and muscle guys, Spahn has won 287 games, 51 of them shutouts. There have been lefties who have won more and who have pitched more shutouts. But no National League lefthander has done it, and no major league southpaw ever has won 20 in 11 seasons.

While Spahn reduced his major league goals to one—300 victories—the Pirates lost a 4-3 decision at Cincinnati, and San Francisco rocked St. Louis 6-2, dropping the Cardinals to third place. Los Angeles defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-4 on Maury Wills' ninth-inning single in a day game.

In the American League, the New York Yankees took a one-game lead over Baltimore by beating the Orioles 4-2. Chicago's third-place White Sox fell three games back, losing 4-3 at Detroit. Washington defeated Boston 3-0, and Cleveland beat Kansas City 4-2.

Spahn, who has lost nine, struck out 15 and walked two while becoming the first to win 20 in the majors this season. He lost a perfect game when he walked Ken Walters in the fourth. He also walked Cal Neeman in the fifth, but finished strong, fanning four pinch hitters in the last two innings.

It was the third no-hitter of the season, all in the NL, and matched the August 18 performance of Lew Burdette, Spahn's roommate, against Philadelphia.

A double by Willie Jones and Gordy Coleman's single gave the Reds the winning run in the eighth against the Pirates. Reliever Jim Brosnan then saved it for lefty Jim O'Toole (12-11) by retiring Gino Cimoli after the Bucs scored with two out in the ninth on a walk and a pinch double by Smoky Burgess. Harvey Haddix (11-10) was the loser.

Orlando Cepeda and Willie Kirkland homered and each drove in two runs for the Giants, who whipped the Cards and lefty Curt Simmons (7-4) with five runs in the fourth. Stu Miller (7-8) was the winner in relief, although giving up home runs by Stan Musial and Charlie James.

SPAHNIE DOES IT. Warren Spahn, Braves' veteran left hander, adds a little to No. 20 over locker in dressing room after pitching a no-hitter Friday night against the Phillies at Milwaukee. Spahn became the first National League pitcher to win 20 games this year. (UPI Telephoto)

White Sox Lose To Tigers

Yanks Beat Orioles, 4-2, To Take One-Game Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two little lefties and two big bats have put the New York Yankees a game ahead of Baltimore in their weekend showdown for the American League lead—and perhaps the pennant.

Whitey Ford, struggling through his worst season but still Manager Casey Stengel's No. 1 guy in the clutch, and Bobby Shantz choked off the Orioles as the Yankees rode in with a 4-2 victory on home runs by Hector Lopez and Roger Maris Friday night.

It was the opener of a four-game series at Yankee Stadium and once more dropped the Orioles two games behind in the decisive "lost" column.

The Birds, with a dozen games left to play compared to the Yankees' 14, picked ace Chuck Estrada, a rookie with a 17-9 record, for this afternoon's game against Bob Turley (8-3). The series ends with a doubleheader Sunday.

The Yankees also moved three games ahead of the third-place Chicago White Sox. The defending champs lost the opener of a four-game set at Detroit 4-3.

Cleveland defeated Kansas City 4-2 and Washington beat Boston 3-0 on the five-hit pitching of winner Chuck Stobbs and Ray Moore.

In the National League, Warren Spahn pitched his first no-hit game, won his 20th and put Milwaukee in second place with a 4-0 decision over Philadelphia that pushed the Braves within 5½ games of first-place Pittsburgh. The Pirates lost 4-3 at Cincinnati, and San Francisco spilled St. Louis to third, 6-2, Los Angeles defeated Chicago's Cubs 5-4.

The Yankees, 10-9 for the season over the Orioles and 7-1 at Yankee Stadium, won this one when Shantz came on in the ninth with two out and the bases loaded, gave up a two-run single by Jim Busby and then struck out Marv Breeding on three pitches.

An eighth-inning home run by Harry Chiti—off White Sox relief ace Gerry Staley—cracked a 3-3 tie for the Tigers. The Sox were checked on five hits by Frank Lary (13-15). Early Wynn was the Sox starter, and scored the tying run in the seventh after Ted Kluszewski's short fly to center. But Wynn injured his elbow pitching and Staley (12-8) took over in the seventh.

The Indians' victory, Jim Perry's 17th, was settled by third-inning solo home runs by Mike de LaHoz, Johnny Romano and Tito Francona against Ned Garver (2-9). But triumph was marred by a bullpen argument between Negro right-hander Jim (Mudcat) Grant and Tribe coach Ted Wilks, who is white. Grant, who said Wilks made a racial slur against him, walked out of the park. He was suspended for the rest of the season by Manager Jimmy Dykes.

East Palestine Drops Opener

Fumbles Costly At Beaver In Bulldogs' 12-0 Defeat

BEAVER — East Palestine High fumbled away a basket of scoring opportunities and dropped its 1960 season opener Friday night at Beaver, 12-0.

Halfback Lawson Cashdollar scored both Beaver touchdowns, the first on a four-yard buck and another on a 40-yard end sweep.

East Palestine, considered a strong contender for the Tri-County League crown, fumbled several times in the third and fourth quarters when touchdowns were only a short distance away. The Bulldog drives halted outside the Beaver 20-yard stripe with each fumble.

East Palestine, playing a non-league opponent, jumps into Tri-County action next week at Sebring.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Jim (Mudcat) Grant, Cleveland pitcher, was suspended—without pay—for the rest of the season by Manager Jimmie Dykes Friday night when he walked off the field.

The departure during the game against Kansas City by Grant, a Negro, came after an argument in the bullpen with Coach Ted Wilks, who is white. Grant said Wilks called him a "black so-and-so." Wilks was not available for comment.

Cleveland, which broke the color barrier in the American League with the introduction of Larry Doby in 1947, has had several Negroes on its team. There never has been a racial incident.

Dykes said he first learned of the walkout when he called Wilks in the bullpen in the second inning to have Grant to warm up. Wilks told the manager that there had been an argument and that Grant had left.

"It seems that Grant made some remark about what a lousy country this is while the national anthem was being played," Dykes said. "Wilks answered him back and Grant said, 'I don't have to take that from anybody,' and took off."

Dykes said he walked from the dugout to the clubhouse during the second inning to see Grant, but the pitcher had already left the stadium.

"I suspended him because he didn't report to me," the manager explained. "There is just no excuse for what he did."

Reached at his home, Grant gave this explanation of his argument with Wilks:

"I was standing in the bullpen and singing along with the national anthem as I always do. When it got to that part 'home of the brave and land of the free,' I sang something like 'this land is not so free, I can't even go to Mississippi.' It was something like that and I sang it in fun."

School For Traffic Safety To Be Launched Thursday

A traffic safety school is scheduled to open in East Liverpool, aimed particularly at the violators who appear before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff and Juvenille Judge Louis Tobin, but also designed to educate other drivers interested in bettering their car handling and knowledge of the law.

A "demonstration" meeting of the class will be held Thursday night from 7 to 9 in the Council Chamber at City Hall so that interested persons can familiarize themselves with operation of the school and its objectives.

When operation starts officially, the class will meet one night each week for a two - hour session, continuing three or four weeks before the final exams and "graduation."

The sponsors include the Columbiana County Motor Club, the Red Cross and Albert E. Kittridge, safety engineer with the United Public Insurance Co., a transportation insurance concern.

Judge Chertoff and Judge Tobin have endorsed the proposed classes and have indicated they will give some of the defendants in traffic cases the opportunity of attending the school as an alternative to paying a fine or waiting out a license suspension. But the student must complete the course satisfactorily if he agrees to the arrangement with the court.

Kittridge explained similar systems are operated in identical schools in such metropolitan centers as Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati. When referring a violator to the school, the judge furnishes a form showing the "student's" name, address and the violation with which he was charged. The school's instructors mark the form at each session to record attendance, the student's attitude and his general participation.

The instructors also report to the court whether the student has passed written tests satisfactorily at the various sessions and at the end of the course.

"Anyone interested in reducing the traffic toll will be welcomed at the class," Kittridge said. "We're interested in making Columbiana County the safest in Ohio."

A large percentage of the instruction will be furnished by so-called visual aids — films and slides — but there also will be classroom lectures and written quizzes.

The tentative name of the class is East Liverpool and Columbiana County Traffic Safety School.

"The real reward of safe driving training will show up in statistics on traffic accidents in this county," Judson English, manager of the East Liverpool office of the Auto Club, commented. "If we can teach one person a fact that may avert the loss of a single life or avoid a serious accident, we will feel well repaid."

Problems Of Juveniles Cited By Atty. Bettis At Lions Club

The need for increased attention by communities in curbing juvenile problems was discussed by Atty. Warren Bettis of Salineville, assistant Columbiana County prosecutor, at a meeting of the Lions Club Friday at the Travelers Hotel.

Bettis, who represents the prosecutor's office in Juvenile Court at Lisbon among his other duties, reported on a statewide increase in juvenile crimes in recent years.

He said 64 per cent of all auto thefts involve boys and girls under 18, and 20 per cent of rapes are linked to youths 17 or younger.

"Don't think it doesn't happen here," he declared, relating a few incidents which have passed through his office.

Bettis said he believes, as does Juvenile Judge Louis Tobin, parents are largely to blame for much of the juvenile crimes and problems. He said in 99 per cent of the cases handled at Lisbon, it has been found the mothers are working and not at home.

He said in the great majority of cases, the youngsters have not attended church.

Service clubs, he said, can help by developing projects to aid and guide youths of the community and to educate parents to responsibility.

Any premium and accrued interest (and the amount necessary for the payment of interest prior to their maturity) shall be transferred to the Treasurer of said City to be applied by him in the payment of principal and interest of said notes in the manner provided by law.

School For Traffic Safety To Be Launched Thursday

A traffic safety school is scheduled to open in East Liverpool, aimed particularly at the violators who appear before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff and Juvenille Judge Louis Tobin, but also designed to educate other drivers interested in bettering their car handling and knowledge of the law.

A "demonstration" meeting of the class will be held Thursday night from 7 to 9 in the Council Chamber at City Hall so that interested persons can familiarize themselves with operation of the school and its objectives.

When operation starts officially, the class will meet one night each week for a two - hour session, continuing three or four weeks before the final exams and "graduation."

The sponsors include the Columbiana County Motor Club, the Red Cross and Albert E. Kittridge, safety engineer with the United Public Insurance Co., a transportation insurance concern.

Judge Chertoff and Judge Tobin have endorsed the proposed classes and have indicated they will give some of the defendants in traffic cases the opportunity of attending the school as an alternative to paying a fine or waiting out a license suspension. But the student must complete the course satisfactorily if he agrees to the arrangement with the court.

Kittridge explained similar systems are operated in identical schools in such metropolitan centers as Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati. When referring a violator to the school, the judge furnishes a form showing the "student's" name, address and the violation with which he was charged. The school's instructors mark the form at each session to record attendance, the student's attitude and his general participation.

The instructors also report to the court whether the student has passed written tests satisfactorily at the various sessions and at the end of the course.

"Anyone interested in reducing the traffic toll will be welcomed at the class," Kittridge said. "We're interested in making Columbiana County the safest in Ohio."

A large percentage of the instruction will be furnished by so-called visual aids — films and slides — but there also will be classroom lectures and written quizzes.

The tentative name of the class is East Liverpool and Columbiana County Traffic Safety School.

"The real reward of safe driving training will show up in statistics on traffic accidents in this county," Judson English, manager of the East Liverpool office of the Auto Club, commented. "If we can teach one person a fact that may avert the loss of a single life or avoid a serious accident, we will feel well repaid."

Problems Of Juveniles Cited By Atty. Bettis At Lions Club

The need for increased attention by communities in curbing juvenile problems was discussed by Atty. Warren Bettis of Salineville, assistant Columbiana County prosecutor, at a meeting of the Lions Club Friday at the Travelers Hotel.

Bettis, who represents the prosecutor's office in Juvenile Court at Lisbon among his other duties, reported on a statewide increase in juvenile crimes in recent years.

He said 64 per cent of all auto thefts involve boys and girls under 18, and 20 per cent of rapes are linked to youths 17 or younger.

"Don't think it doesn't happen here," he declared, relating a few incidents which have passed through his office.

Bettis said he believes, as does Juvenile Judge Louis Tobin, parents are largely to blame for much of the juvenile crimes and problems. He said in 99 per cent of the cases handled at Lisbon, it has been found the mothers are working and not at home.

He said in the great majority of cases, the youngsters have not attended church.

Service clubs, he said, can help by developing projects to aid and guide youths of the community and to educate parents to responsibility.

ORDINANCE NUMBER 20, 1960

AN ORDINANCE PROVIDING FOR THE ISSUANCE OF NOTES BY THE CITY OF EAST LIVERPOOL IN ANTICIPATION OF THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS FOR THE PURPOSE OF RECONSTRUCTING AND ALTERING EXISTING SANITARY AND STORM SEWERS AT KEENE STREET CULVERT AND DECLARING THE NECESSITY OF THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS FOR SUCH PURPOSE.

WHEREAS, this Council has requested the City Auditor to issue his certificate as to the estimated life of the property and improvement proposed to be purchased and constructed from the proceeds of the bonds hereinafter referred to and of the notes to be issued in anticipation of said bonds, and the City Auditor has certified to this Council such estimated life as exceeding ten years and has further certified the maximum maturity of such bonds as exceeding ten years and such notes as five years.

NOW, THEREFORE,

BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of East Liverpool, State of Ohio:

SECTION 1. That it is deemed necessary to issue the bonds of the City of East Liverpool, in the principal sum of $30,000.00 for the payment of the cost of altering and reconstructing existing storm sewers and sanitary sewers at the Keene Street Culvert made necessary because of the change of the Ohio River water level caused by the New Cumberland Locks and Dam Project.

SECTION 2. That said bonds of the City of East Liverpool shall be issued in said principal sum of Fifty Thousand Dollars ($30,000.00) for the purpose aforesaid. Said bonds shall be the denomination of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) and shall be dated approximately the first day of July, 1961, shall bear interest at not to exceed four per centum per annum, and bonds shall mature as follows: In substantially equal annual installments over a period of ten years from 1962 to 1971 inclusive.

SECTION 3. That it is necessary and this Council hereby determines that notes shall be issued in anticipation of the issue of said bonds.

SECTION 4. That such anticipatory notes in the amount of Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000.00), which amount does not exceed the amount of the bond issue, shall be issued from time to time as needed under and by virtue of the authority of Section 133.10 of the Revised Code of the State of Ohio. Such notes shall be dated the date of issuance and shall be in the denomination or denominations as fixed by the Auditor and Mayor of the City of East Liverpool, and shall be numbered as determined by said Auditor and Mayor.

Said notes shall bear interest at the rate of not exceeding four per centum per annum until paid and the interest on said notes shall be payable semi-annually. Said notes shall not be issued for a longer period of time than one year from date thereof, and shall be payable at the office of the Treasurer of the City of East Liverpool upon presentation and surrender of said notes as they respectively mature.

Said notes shall be due and payable as follows: One (1) year after dates of issuance thereof.

Said notes shall be signed by the Mayor and Auditor of said City and sealed with the corporate seal of said City.

Each note shall express upon its face the purpose for which it is issued and that it is issued in pursuance of this ordinance and under authority of the Revised Code and the General Laws of the State of Ohio and particularly Section 133.32 of the Revised Code of Ohio; and said notes shall bear the name of the improvement for which they are issued legibly written or printed upon them as follows:

"KEENE STREET CULVERT ALTERATION AND RECONSTRUCTION NOTES".

SECTION 5. That said money so received by the issuance of said notes shall be placed to the credit of the following funds and in the amounts therein stated:

KEENE STREET CULVERT ALTERATION AND RECONSTRUCTION FUND $50,000.00, and shall be deemed appropriated for the use for which it was borrowed and shall not be used for any other purpose.

SECTION 6. That the Director of Public Service-Safety be and he is hereby authorized and directed to issue vouchers to the City Auditor for payments due under said contracts from said funds.

SECTION 7. For the payment of the principal and interest of said notes, the full faith, credit and revenue of the City of East Liverpool, be and they are hereby irrevocably pledged.

SECTION 8. Said notes shall be first offered to the Treasurer of said City in his official capacity as being in charge of the Bond Payment Fund and if said Treasurer refuses to take any or all of said notes, then said notes shall be sold at private sale by the City Auditor, but for not less than par and accrued interest, and the proceeds from such sale, except any premium and accrued interest thereon (and the amount thereof necessary for the payment of interest prior to the maturity of said notes) shall be paid into the proper fund and used for the purpose aforesaid and for no other purpose. Any premium and accrued interest (and the amount necessary for the payment of interest prior to their maturity) shall be transferred to the Treasurer of said City to be applied by him in the payment of principal and interest of said notes in the manner provided by law.

SECTION 9. All moneys received from the United States Government by way of reimbursement of cost shall be first applied to the payment of said notes and the proceeds of the bonds to be issued and all unexpended balance remaining unpaid in the fund after the cost and expenses of the project have been paid, shall be applied to the payment of said notes and interest thereof as the same shall become due and to no other purposes whatsoever, until all of said notes and said interest have been fully paid.

SECTION 10. That for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the interest on the foregoing issue of notes, promptly when and as the same falls due and also to provide a fund sufficient to discharge the said notes at maturity, there shall be and is hereby levied on all the taxable property in said City of East Liverpool, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually during the period for which said notes are to run, in an amount sufficient to provide funds to pay interest upon said notes as and when the same falls due and also to provide a fund for the discharge of the principal of said notes at maturity, which said tax shall not be less than the interest and sinking fund tax required by Section 11 of Article XII of the Constitution.

Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, extended and levied upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levied hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with the interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the interest and principal of said notes when and as the same fall due.

SECTION 11. The City Auditor is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the County Auditor.

SECTION 12. This Ordinance is hereby declared to be an emergency measure and shall take effect and be in force immediately upon passage and approval. Said emergency lies in the fact that said reconstruction of Keene Street must be completed before the raise in the river water level and is therefore necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety of the citizens of said City.

Loan Planned On Sewer Job Until Grant

Council is scheduled to consider legislation Monday night clearing the way for the city to borrow $30,000 on short-term notes to help pay the cost of relocation of the Carpenters Run sanitary sewer pending receipt of a federal grant of the same amount which already has been promised.

The loan will allow the city to settle for the work with the contractor, Sikora Brothers Excavating Co. of Poland, and then be reimbursed with the federal funds. The overall cost of the project is about $80,000, with the city paying the portion not covered by the anticipated federal grant.

When the city built the interceptor sewer system to the sewage treatment plant, it received clearance for federal aid totaling $240,000. The city used about $212,000 of the amount, then received assurance from the federal government that it could apply for the balance to be used later in the Carpenters Run sewer relocation.

The legislation will authorize Auditor Lawrence Applegate to borrow the $30,000 on notes, anticipating receipt of the federal funds.

Council also will consider legislation granting the State Highway Department a permanent easement across a tract of approximately a quarter of an acre of vacant municipally - owned ground for use as part of the right-of-way for the California Hollow - West End Freeway.

The ground is in the 1700 block of Dresden Ave., straddling Carpenters Run. It extends to the old right-of-way of the Y. & O. Railroad on the hillside above the run.

U.S. Astronauts Look To 1961 For First Space Hop

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP —While rumors abound that the Soviet Union may soon attempt a manned space launching, America's astronauts are looking confidently toward the first U.S. manned flight early next year.

The deployment of several Soviet ships around the globe has raised speculation the Soviet Union may try to place a man in orbit to coincide with Premier Nikita Khrushchev's arrival at the United Nations next week.

"We hope they don't beat us to it," American astronaut Scott Carpenter told newsmen Friday. "We'd naturally like to be first."

Carpenter and his fellow spacemen trainees talked for the first time with reporters at the new National Aeronautics and Space Administration central control building here. This will be the nerve center when a U.S. space pilot is sent aloft.

The other astronauts are: Leroy G. Cooper, 34; John H. Glenn, 38; Virgil I. Grissom, 33; Walter M. Schirra, 36; Alan B. Shepard, 36, and Donald K. Slayton, 35.

NASA had hoped to send one of these men on a Redstone-boosted ballistic flight 120 miles up and about 200 miles down the Atlantic missile range late this year. The flight is now expected in January or February.

If all goes right, one of the astronauts will be launched into orbit late in 1961 and be whirled three times around the globe in 4½ hours.

Woman Cited After Her Car Rams Truck

Mrs. Esther Evelsizer of Chester R. D. 1 was cited by Chester police for hazardous driving Friday after her car hit a truck at 10:30 a. m. at Carolina Ave. and 6th St.

A hearing will be set later before Chester Mayor Ray Collins. There was some $350 damage to her 1956 sedan and damage to the rear bumper of a Great Lakes Solvent Co. truck of Industry, driven by Robert Kincaid of Railroad St., Chester.

Police said Kincaid was making a right turn from 6th St. onto Carolina Ave., when Mrs. Evelsizer, traveling west on Carolina, hit his rear bumper.

Police Chief Harold Davis investigated.

Steelworkers Group Leaves For Convention

Some 14 delegates of Midland Steelworkers Local 1212 will be leaving today and Sunday for the union's 10th constitutional convention at Atlantic City, Monday through Friday.

Joseph D'Alesio, president, will attend automatically as the 12th delegate. Two more will attend due to a three-way tie in the election of delegates recently.

Crowd Due At Fete

WEST POINT — A crowd is expected at the seventh annual homecoming and dinner Sunday from noon to 5 p. m. at St. Agatha's Church. Chicken and ham dinners will be served in the church basement. Tickets are available from members of the church. They also may be purchased at the door.

The country which has the greatest number of earthquakes in the world is Chile, with Japan ranking second. For every 1,000 quakes felt in Chile, there are 431 in Japan.

Mrs. Karl Wagoner served as a model for Mrs. Paul Murray of Rochester, who presented the program, "Makeup and Morale."

The citation received by the club for dedicated service for a better community in the 1959-60 Community Achievement Contest, was displayed. The contest was sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and Sears Roebuck & Co.

Mrs. Fritz Dobrontz presented the project prize to Mrs. Paul Udon. Mrs. Lysle Bradshaw will be in charge of the club's monthly projects. Mrs. Murray's prize was won by Mrs. Wagoner.

Members voted on the suggestion of purchasing folding tables for the Industry volunteer fire department.

Mrs. Chapman said a collection of articles will be made by Nov. 15 for the Mental Health Society.

A membership drive will be supervised by Mrs. William Duck, membership chairman.

Members may contact Mrs. Chapman or Mrs. Bradshaw for tickets to "Autumn Glamour," a fashion show to be presented in the Beaver Falls High School auditorium Oct. 12 at 8:00 p. m. by the Benson Co. The affair will be sponsored by the Beaver County Federation.

Mrs. William Ralph, Library Board chairman, announced Mrs. Erna Vern, Mrs. Udon and Mrs. Jack Peck will staff the Ohio View library in October. She said the annual library public card party will be held Thursday, Oct. 27 in the Industry fire hall with prizes to be awarded.

Experts Begin Probe Into Wrecked Race Car

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, (AP)—Specialists started their probe today of the wreckage of the 4,250-horsepower Bluebird II racer which crashed at 300 miles per hour Friday and injured driver Donald Campbell.

The accident happened 25 years to the day after Campbell's father, the late Sir Malcolm Campbell, became the first man to pass 300 m.p.h. on this same salt flat.

Campbell was making trial runs in the 30-foot streamliner building up to an attempt to crack the world mark of 394 m.p.h. set by the late John Cobb of England in 1947.

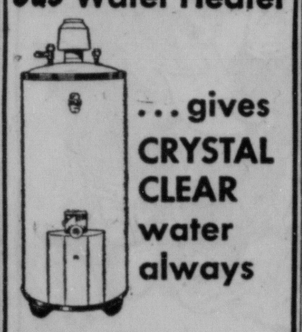

The 39-year-old Englishman suffered bruises, cuts and a possible concussion. He was hospitalized at Tooele, Utah, 94 miles east of here.

Estate Goes To Trusts

CHARDON, Ohio (AP)—Most of the estate of S. Livingston Mather, Cleveland industrialist who died Sunday, will go into trusts that Mather had set up. Nature and amount of the trusts will not be known until a report is made in connection with Ohio inheritance taxes.

Four U. S. presidents were the sons of ministers. Cleveland's father was a Presbyterian minister; Arthur's father was a Baptist minister; Wilson's father was a Presbyterian minister, and Hoover's father was a preacher in the Friends or Quakers meeting.

Kennedy Eyes Southland In Campaign Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy points his presidential drive southward today with a heavy schedule of campaigning in North Carolina.

Kennedy will test his crowd-pulling power in the state after what he regards as highly successful forays into New Jersey and Pennsylvania. His motorcade appearances in those states drew what local Democrats described as record throngs, and in Maryland Friday night 1,800 turned out to hear him at a $100-a-plate dinner near Baltimore.

North Carolina has become a battleground with backers of Vice President Richard M. Nixon claiming they have a good chance of adding the state's 14 electoral votes to their column. Adlai E. Stevenson carried it against President Eisenhower in 1956 by a little more than 15,000 out of about 1,165,000 votes.

Kennedy scheduled appearances at Greenville, Greensboro, Asheville, Charlotte, and Raleigh before returning to Washington tonight.

Kennedy told Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in his Maryland speech that American voters are not going to be influenced by what he does or doesn't say about either candidate in the presidential contest.

Addressing his remarks to Khrushchev, who will arrive Monday for a meeting of the United Nations, Kennedy said the Soviet Premier ought not to be deceived into thinking that because the Democrats criticize Eisenhower administration policies they are "preaching disunity."

"Perhaps you have been misled into believing that we are a divided country," he said, "or that one side favors appeasement, or that the humiliation of our President would be pleasing to his political opponents. Nothing could be further from the truth."

Six Soviet Ships In Pacific Hint Man Space Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unexplained movements of six Soviet ships in the Atlantic and Pacific are building up speculation that the Soviet Union soon may shoot a man into space.

New details, released by the U.S. Navy Friday, show that two of the ships, a tanker and a tug, are standing off the Grand Banks in the Atlantic.

That's just where a Soviet satellite might pass if it followed the same path as Soviet rockets in the past. A capsule ejected by such a satellite probably would fall into the ocean near the two Soviet ships.

The speculation is that the Soviets may fire a space capsule with a man in it and then recover it in the Atlantic.

Such a spectacular space try, if attempted soon, would come on the eve of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's arrival in New York for the United Nations General Assembly.

It also would mean that the world would have two significant space attempts in a brief period of time.

The United States is preparing to try shooting a rocket around the moon. The try will be made between Sept. 22 and 26, while Khrushchev is in the United States.

4 Autoists Lose Permits For Year

LISBON — Four Columbiana County autoists have lost their driver's licenses for a year under the state's 12-point demerit system.

Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp suspended the permits Friday after a report from the State Department of Motor Vehicles showed 12 points or more over a 2-year period for each.

Robert L. Keeper, 50, General Delivery, East Liverpool, had two violations of driving while intoxicated since Feb. 17, 1959. Judge Sharp allowed him to obtain a restricted license to drive only to and from work.

Charles William Rhodes, 19, of Columbiana R. D. 1, had 14 points for 3 cases of speeding, 2 for reckless operation and one for a defective muffler.

Wayne Dewey Longanecker, 23, of Box 227, Washingtonville, had 18 points — 3 cases of driving while intoxicated since Jan. 24.

Talmadge Dwight Henson, 38, of Box 62, East Rochester, had 26 points in 2 years — 3 cases of driving while intoxicated, one for no brakes, one for speeding, one for driving left of center and one for no driver's license.

Loan Planned On Sewer Job Until Grant

Council is scheduled to consider legislation Monday night clearing the way for the city to borrow $30,000 on short-term notes to help pay the cost of relocation of the Carpenters Run sanitary sewer pending receipt of a federal grant of the same amount which already has been promised.

The loan will allow the city to settle for the work with the contractor, Sikora Brothers Excavating Co. of Poland, and then be reimbursed with the federal funds. The overall cost of the project is about $80,000, with the city paying the portion not covered by the anticipated federal grant.

When the city built the interceptor sewer system to the sewage treatment plant, it received clearance for federal aid totaling $240,000. The city used about $212,000 of the amount, then received assurance from the federal government that it could apply for the balance to be used later in the Carpenters Run sewer relocation.

The legislation will authorize Auditor Lawrence Applegate to borrow the $30,000 on notes, anticipating receipt of the federal funds.

Council also will consider legislation granting the State Highway Department a permanent easement across a tract of approximately a quarter of an acre of vacant municipally - owned ground for use as part of the right-of-way for the California Hollow - West End Freeway.

The ground is in the 1700 block of Dresden Ave., straddling Carpenters Run. It extends to the old right-of-way of the Y. & O. Railroad on the hillside above the run.

U.S. Astronauts Look To 1961 For First Space Hop

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP —While rumors abound that the Soviet Union may soon attempt a manned space launching, America's astronauts are looking confidently toward the first U.S. manned flight early next year.

The deployment of several Soviet ships around the globe has raised speculation the Soviet Union may try to place a man in orbit to coincide with Premier Nikita Khrushchev's arrival at the United Nations next week.

"We hope they don't beat us to it," American astronaut Scott Carpenter told newsmen Friday. "We'd naturally like to be first."

Carpenter and his fellow spacemen trainees talked for the first time with reporters at the new National Aeronautics and Space Administration central control building here. This will be the nerve center when a U.S. space pilot is sent aloft.

The other astronauts are: Leroy G. Cooper, 34; John H. Glenn, 38; Virgil I. Grissom, 33; Walter M. Schirra, 36; Alan B. Shepard, 36, and Donald K. Slayton, 35.

NASA had hoped to send one of these men on a Redstone-boosted ballistic flight 120 miles up and about 200 miles down the Atlantic missile range late this year. The flight is now expected in January or February.

If all goes right, one of the astronauts will be launched into orbit late in 1961 and be whirled three times around the globe in 4½ hours.

Woman Cited After Her Car Rams Truck

Mrs. Esther Eveleizer of Chester R. D. 1 was cited by Chester police for hazardous driving Friday after her car hit a truck at 10:20 a. m. at Carolina Ave. and 6th St.

A hearing will be set later before Chester Mayor Ray Collins. There was some $800 damage to her 1956 sedan and damage to the rear bumper of a Great Lakes Solvent Co. truck of Industry, driven by Robert Kincaid of Railroad St., Chester.

Police said Kincaid was making a right turn from 6th St. onto Carolina Ave., when Mrs. Eveleizer, traveling west on Carolina, hit his rear bumper.

Police Chief Harold Davis investigated.

Joseph D'Alesio, president, will attend automatically as the 12th delegate. Two more will attend due to a three-way tie in the election of delegates recently.

Crowd Due At Fete

WEST POINT — A crowd is expected at the seventh annual homecoming and dinner Sunday from noon to 5 p. m. at St. Agatha's Church. Chicken and ham dinners will be served in the church basement. Tickets are available from members of the church. They also may be purchased at the door.

"Guest Night" was observed when the Industry Borough Women's Club resumed meetings Thursday night in the Ohio View School. Mrs. William Chapman, president, presided for business.

Mrs. Karl Wagoner served as a model for Mrs. Paul Murray of Rochester, who presented the program, "Makeup and Morale."

The citation received by the club for dedicated service for a better community in the 1959-60 Community Achievement Contest, was displayed. The contest was sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and Sears Roebuck & Co.

Mrs. Fritz Dubronitz presented the project prize to Mrs. Paul Udon. Mrs. Lysle Bradshaw will be in charge of the club's monthly projects. Mrs. Murray's prize was won by Mrs. Wagoner.

Members voted on the suggestion of purchasing folding tables for the Industry volunteer fire department.

Mrs. Chapman said a collection of articles will be made by Nov. 15 for the Mental Health Society.

A membership drive will be supervised by Mrs. William Duck, membership chairman.

Members may contact Mrs. Chapman or Mrs. Bradshaw for tickets to "Autumn Glamour," a fashion show to be presented in the Beaver Falls High School auditorium Oct. 12 at 8:30 p. m. by the Benson Co. The affair will be sponsored by the Beaver County Federation.

Mrs. William Ralph, Library Board chairman, announced Mrs. Erna Vern, Mrs. Uden and Mrs. Jack Peck will staff the Ohio View library in October. She said the annual library public card party will be held Thursday, Oct. 27 in the Industry fire hall with prizes to be awarded.

Yearbooks were distributed by Mrs. Wagoner.

Mrs. Bradshaw, Mrs. Peck, and Mrs. Ed Stephens and Mrs. Earl Hays of the Ohio View Women's Club represented their units at the Pennsylvania Federation sessions in Greensburg Tuesday. They were among 600 delegates from the Southwest District.

Mrs. Ralph Graham and the hostess committee served refreshments following business.

The next meeting will be Oct. 20 at 8 p. m. in the Ohio View School. The program will include a speaker from the Beaver County Lighthouse Eye Bank. Mrs. Fred Schmitt will be hostess chairman.

Experts Begin Probe Into Wrecked Race Car

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, (AP)—Specialists started their probe today of the wreckage of the 4,250-horsepower Bluebird II racer which crashed at 300 miles per hour Friday and injured driver Donald Campbell.

The accident happened 25 years to the day after Campbell's father, the late Sir Malcolm Campbell, became the first man to pass 300 m.p.h. on this same salt flat.

Campbell was making trial runs in the 39-foot streamliner building up to an attempt to crack the world mark of 394 m.p.h. set by the late John Cobb of England in 1947.

The 39-year-old Englishman suffered bruises, cuts and a possible concussion. He was hospitalized at Tooele, Utah, 94 miles east of here.

Estate Goes To Trusts

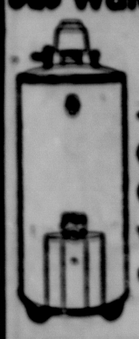

CHARDON, Ohio (AP)—Most of the estate of S. Livingston Mather, Cleveland industrialist who died Sunday, will go into trusts that Mather had set up. Nature and amount of the trusts will not be known until a report is made in connection with Ohio inheritance taxes.

Four U. S. presidents were the sons of ministers. Cleveland's father was a Presbyterian minister; Arthur's father was a Baptist minister; Wilson's father was a Presbyterian minister, and Hoover's father was a preacher in the Friends or Quakers meeting.

Kennedy Eyes Southland In Campaign Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy points his presidential drive southward today with a heavy schedule of campaigning in North Carolina.

Kennedy will test his crowd-pulling power in the state after what he regards as highly successful forays into New Jersey and Pennsylvania. His motorcade appearances in those states drew what local Democrats described as record throngs, and in Maryland Friday night 1,800 turned out to hear him at a $100-a-plate dinner near Baltimore.

North Carolina has become a battleground with backers of Vice President Richard M. Nixon claiming they have a good chance of adding the state's 14 electoral votes to their column. Adlai E. Stevenson carried it against President Eisenhower in 1956 by a little more than 15,000 out of about 1,165,000 votes.

Kennedy scheduled appearances at Greenville, Greensboro, Asheville, Charlotte, and Raleigh before returning to Washington tonight.

Kennedy told Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in his Maryland speech that American voters are not going to be influenced by what he does or doesn't say about either candidate in the presidential contest.

Addressing his remarks to Khrushchev, who will arrive Monday for a meeting of the United Nations, Kennedy said the Soviet Premier ought not to be deceived into thinking that because the Democrats criticize Eisenhower administration policies they are "preaching disunity."

"Perhaps you have been misled into believing that we are a divided country," he said, "or that one side favors appeasement, or that the humiliation of our President would be pleasing to his political opponents. Nothing could be further from the truth."

Six Soviet Ships In Pacific Hint Man Space Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unexplained movements of six Soviet ships in the Atlantic and Pacific are building up speculation that the Soviet Union soon may shoot a man into space.

New details, released by the U.S. Navy Friday, show that two of the ships, a tanker and a tug, are standing off the Grand Banks in the Atlantic.

That's just where a Soviet satellite might pass if it followed the same path as Soviet rockets in the past. A capsule ejected by such a satellite probably would fall into the ocean near the two Soviet ships.

The speculation is that the Soviets may fire a space capsule with a man in it and then recover it in the Atlantic.

Such a spectacular space try, if attempted soon, would come on the eve of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's arrival in New York for the United Nations General Assembly.

It also would mean that the world would have two significant space attempts in a brief period of time.

The United States is preparing to try shooting a rocket around the moon. The try will be made between Sept. 22 and 26, while Khrushchev is in the United States.

SHOULD YOUR TOT GO TO NURSERY SCHOOL?

Preschool training can't substitute for home care, but it can often be a valuable supplement

By ROLLIE HOCHSTEIN

"AND WHAT DID YOU DO at school today, Judy?"

"We clapped hands. I climbed and see-sawed. We drank milk. I made a clay pussy-cat, and we heard a story."

Nothing unusual about this dinner-table report—except that Judy is just 2½ and "we" is a brand-new word for her. This—in a word—is what good nursery schools are doing for many thousands of children who yearly bridge the gap between home and school, "I" and "we," via supervised group play.

In the last 30 years, nurseries have taken a leading educational role in America. Many parents are beginning to realize that the activities of two- to five-year-olds are too important to leave to chance.

The trend to bigger families and more compact homes also contributes to the hordes of preschoolers who are sent to the wide-open spaces and elaborate play equipment of nurseries. A record number of mothers are working at least part time; others need a few extra hours to devote to a new baby; still others use nursery school to make up for a shortage of neighborhood playmates.

Nursery schools, however, are no place to solve the problems of a "problem child." The content, stable, secure youngster is the best nursery enrollee. The child who is not toilet-trained, not "off" the bottle, not able to communicate clearly or dress himself is not ready to leave his mother. A child who is sent to nursery because of a new baby should be established there before the baby's arrival.

Questions to ask yourself or your family doctor before deciding: Is your child especially susceptible to colds? Does group play overstimulate or overtire him? Will he rest—or at least keep quiet—during nap periods? Can he eat without help and wait until regular mealtimes? Is he secure enough so that he won't be afraid to leave you? Does he understand that other grownups can love and protect him?

ALTHOUGH most nurseries are privately run, you're likely to find parochial, public-school, university, and cooperative nurseries, and perhaps day-care centers not far from you. A well-staffed, well-equipped private nursery can't charge much less than $35 a month (part time) and $50 a month (full time), but schools with mother-help and subsidies can charge substantially less. Many operate on a sliding scale, according to your income. University and public-school nurseries, serving as laboratories for students and parents, charge only a nominal fee. But more important than price is policy. Here are some of the ways you can learn if a nursery school is a good one:

1. Ask your local board of education, board of health, or social welfare department for a list of recommended schools.

2. Visit the school while a session is in progress. Do the children seem happy? Is there lots of space both indoors and out? Is there plenty of good, safe, well-kept play equipment outdoors? Is there a variety of tools, toys, and materials indoors? Look for excellent lighting, accessible toilets, child-size chairs, tables, and shelves. Does the program alternate free play with organized activity?

3. Look at the kitchen. Is it sanitary? Is there good refrigeration? Are well-balanced meals served?

4. Talk to the teacher. Ask questions. Nursery-school and child-psychology training are fine, but a college degree is less important than a warm friendly personality.

5. Meet the director and learn about his background. Are the children examined daily for colds and contagious diseases? Are all safety precautions observed? Does the school carry liability insurance for teachers and children? Are parents' visits welcomed? Are parent-teacher conferences encouraged?

6. Be sure there are enough teachers and enough floor space per child. The Child Welfare League of America recommends 35 square feet of floor space per child and, in the three to four age group, two teachers for every group of 12 to 15 children. For four- and five-year-olds, the League recommends two teachers per group of 15 to 20 children.

7. Is there a relaxed attendance policy? Better schools expect your child to be absent from about one-fourth of the sessions during his first months. The freedom to go or not to go is part of making nursery a happy place for the child.

Once you've picked the school, tell your tot's teacher anything about him you think she should know. It's a good idea, too, to stay at school with him as long as he wants you to. After a few days, he'll probably wave you off so gladly that you'll feel a trifle sad. In a few months, though, you'll probably find that nursery school is worth the effort.

You'll also find that time away from your child brings more enjoyment with him; that outside activities can give you personal satisfaction without a sense of guilt; that conferences with your child's teacher give you a better understanding of your child and his assets and liabilities.

But never forget: nursery school is a supplement — not a substitute — for home life. There are, of course, some things a nursery school does better than you can. But for the preschooler, as well as all other children, affection, support, and confidence from parents in the home is what comes first and counts most.

The Women Behind The Candidates

JACQUELINE KENNEDY

What Kind of First Lady Would She Be?

By BOB DRISCOLL

JACQUELINE BOUVIER Kennedy, the beautiful 31-year-old wife of the Democratic Presidential nominee, admits being a political neophyte before her marriage in 1953. Since then, however, she has lived in the politically saturated atmosphere of what is now referred to as "the Kennedy clan."

"She breathes all of the political gases that flow around us," says husband John F. Kennedy, "but never seems to inhale them." He didn't mean that Jacqueline (she dislikes the nickname "Jackie") lacked political savvy; he meant that she took political matters in stride.

So when I recently asked her: "Mrs. Kennedy, what kind of a First Lady will you be if Senator Kennedy wins the election?"—a loaded question at best—I wasn't surprised by her answer.

"I really think it would be silly to talk about that now," she replied.

Although Jacqueline feels that it would be presumptuous and undignified to project herself as the next First Lady, our ensuing discussion on a variety of subjects gave an idea what to expect.

She certainly wouldn't be as much in the public eye as some previous First Ladies, such as Eleanor Roosevelt. She has demonstrated during her husband's campaigns that she feels she should travel with him as his wife, not as a fellow politician.

Jacqueline has tried to make the Kennedys' Georgetown home a retreat where Jack can escape pressures.

When I asked her why she hadn't given more speeches in Senator Kennedy's behalf during his campaign, she told me emphatically: "When Jack is going to speak, I'm sure that no one wants to hear me. I'm happy to chat with people afterward and answer their questions about my husband if they have any. Once in Wisconsin, when Jack was called home to vote, I fulfilled his speaking schedule for two days, but only because he couldn't possibly be there."

With great feeling, she told me she was heartbroken that her doctors won't permit her to campaign with Jack because she is expecting her second child in November. (Their first child, Caroline, is now 2½.) In 1956, she went to the Democratic convention with him when she was seven months pregnant. She felt it was her duty to be there, but she had a miscarriage soon after and was on the critical list for a week.

"Maybe I'll find some magic way to help him this time," she told me whimsically. "This is the major effort of his life."

What's Jacqueline Really Like?

To understand the full significance of Jacqueline's attitude and the effect it would have on her possible tenure in the White House, it's necessary to know the "real" Mrs. Kennedy.

Jacqueline's society upbringing is consistent with the background of many of our First Ladies. Her father, the late John Bouvier III, was a stockbroker, as is her stepfather, Hugh Auchincloss.

She is accustomed to summers on the swank seashore at Newport, R. I., servants, boats, travel, horses, private schools, and all the other adjuncts of upper-class living. Quite often her aristocratic family spoke French at the dinner table; if Jacqueline or her sister Caroline lapsed into English, they had to pay a penny fine.

As she grew up, she followed a course that one could safely predict for a young girl of elite family background. Straight "A's" at Miss Porter's exclusive school preceded Vassar College. She left Vassar to study on the continent.

Perhaps it was at this point that the sheltered background of cloistered riches wore thin and the woman that Jack Kennedy fell in love with began to emerge. She refused to return to Vassar because she didn't want "to live like a little girl again" in a college dormitory. She finished work for her degree at George Washington University in Washington, D.C., and set out to find a newspaper job.

When she was offered an inquiring photographer's job on the Washington Post & Times Herald, she grabbed it. Basically she's a shy girl, and she admits that at first it was agony "stopping perfect strangers and asking them silly questions while a photographer bobbed around between us." But she showed a characteristic determination by sticking to it. She even learned photography (she still loves to take pictures although she hates to be photographed herself) and went out on her own.

Considering Jacqueline's shyness, it's difficult to picture her as part of the Kennedy family. The Kennedys have always been a closely knit group with a rigorous spirit comparable to that of a college football team, and Jacqueline has done her best to adapt to their feverish vitality. She played in the traditional Kennedy touch-football games, for instance, although she probably would have preferred to cut flowers for the house. Brother-in-law Teddy brought home some brawny teammates from Harvard for a "friendly" game one weekend, and the high-spirited collegians ended Jacqueline's attempt to "be a Kennedy" by breaking her ankle.

She's Happier in the Background

Jacqueline decided to be herself, to stand back and admire the enthusiasms of the family she had married into. All indications point to the fact that this passive role suits her. She's certainly not as dynamic as her husband and will be fully content to take a back seat to him as far as public life is concerned. Because of her attitude, friends say that Jack Kennedy has finally learned to relax.

Any White House guest list, however, would reflect Jacqueline's preferences as well as her husband's. Instead of just cabinet members, high-ranking officials, and businessmen, it's a safe bet there also would be younger, more varied guests for the Kennedys. For example, Jacqueline's newspaper background put her in close contact with many journalists, and Jack, a Pulitzer Prize-winning author, shares her respect for newsmen.

Though she has a governess for Caroline, Jacqueline prefers caring for her daughter herself. Like two gentle kittens, they play together for hours.

Formal entertaining, on the basis of past record, would probably be held to a minimum although Jacqueline is at home at such functions. Her own Newport wedding was described as "the most impressive the old society stronghold has seen in years." There were 900 guests at the reception, and Jacqueline reportedly charmed each one.

When I asked her how she managed to run a household as hectic as hers, she told me: "I've learned that we can't have any prearranged schedule in politics. Ever since Jack forgot to tell me that he had invited 40 guests to lunch soon after we were married, I've been prepared for any emergency. I can usually count on at least six persons for breakfast, any number for lunch, and who-knows-what for dinner. It's my greatest wish—and I flatter myself that I do it well—to run a house around such a busy man."

Her Job Is to Help Him

There's no question that Jacqueline would continue to "run the house" around her husband even if it were in the White House. "I want to take such good care of my husband," she told an interviewer, "that whatever he is doing, he can do it better because he has me. Not be pulled away from it—how awful that would be! His work is so important—and so exciting."

There is no scarcity of servants in the Kennedy household, but anyone who doubts that Jacqueline is the mistress in her own home is mistaken. She has a cook, governess, maid, and gardener in her Washington home; for the summers, the governess comes with them to Hyannis Port, Mass., where a butler is the core of a temporary staff.

But all of them work under Jacqueline. She's the one who makes everything function smoothly. She runs the household on a budget. "And I'm pretty good at sticking to it," she told me. "Neither Jack (who cares so little about money that he rarely has change in his pocket; his friends complain that they must pick up the checks) nor I are very extravagant. We live on his salary as a Senator."

Often she arranges an intimate dinner for one or two couples from among their closest friends. "Jack is tired at the end of the day, so I always try to keep our groups small," she told me. A typical group might consist of Torbert H. Macdonald, Jack's roommate at Harvard and now Congressman from Jack's old district in Boston; his wife; a Washington newspaper couple; and, maybe some of the Kennedy clan.

Food Isn't Important to Kennedys

Jacqueline talks about her home excitedly except when it comes to cooking. She's not the type of woman who exchanges menus. She sets a good table (her favorite menu is "red meat, a salad, and ice cream—Jack likes it"), but like her husband she is bored with "food talk."

If the culinary reports from a Kennedy White House would be scant, news about changes in decor would be correspondingly heavy. Jacqueline's taste is evident in both her red-brick home in the Georgetown section of the capital and her small clapboard summer house in Hyannis Port.

"Both of our houses are only partially furnished," she told me. "I'll be very sad when they're finished. It's fun to browse the antique shops."

She has no favorite decor, modern or period. "The Cape home is strictly a summer house with nothing in it that could possibly be hurt by wet feet or bathing suits (both she and Jack love to swim and sail). I think we're a bit more comfortable in a house like this where we can relax."

The Kennedy house in Washington is more formal—"sort of like an elevator shaft, a different room on every floor," to use her description. "I love both homes and am happy in either one," she adds.

If the Kennedys should change their address to Pennsylvania Avenue in January, their living quarters will be conspicuous, too, for the great bulk of reading material they'll import. Jacqueline has always read voraciously; biographies and memoirs are her favorites. Jack has often startled people by picking up a magazine during a conversation and reading an article before rejoining the talk.

Sometimes Jacqueline coaxes the Senator to a movie. "It's very relaxing for him," she told me, and added: "He likes Westerns and Civil War pictures." She sounded as if she goes along just to be with him, not because she wants to see the show.

Jacqueline Kennedy would perhaps be the most beautiful First Lady ever to grace the White House, and possibly the best dressed. She doesn't believe in elaborate costumes, but her striking figure sets off her basically simple but exquisitely tailored dresses and suits.

Jacqueline May Shake Fashion World

Since the First Lady often sets style trends, Jacqueline might touch off something of a revolution in the fashion industry. Most of her predecessors have dressed properly and maturely, if somewhat unspectacularly. Jacqueline is in the age group in which women are most concerned with dress, and she shows a marked liking for sports clothes. Her expensively tailored slacks would likely be copied by a great number of young women.

She doesn't have closetsful of clothes, although she certainly could afford to. One reason is that she doesn't like to go on shopping sprees. "I try to shop only in the spring and the fall," she told me, "but I didn't get a chance at all this year."

Another reason for her limited wardrobe is her unwillingness to accept anything that isn't exactly right for her. "When you rush to a store," she told me, "you never find what you want."

"A suit, a good black dress with sleeves, and a short evening gown" are the only major items which she feels she needs for traveling. "At first, I used to bring everything. Not now. I wore one dress every single day during the West Virginia primary campaign," she told me. "It was four years old, but I was so glad to have it."

Jacqueline naturally wants to spend as much time as possible with her husband, but she has long since accepted the fact that in public life his time is not his own and will become even less so if he wins in November. Fortunately, she has her own consuming occupations. She's interested in art and is a gifted amateur painter. And then she has her books, always constant companions.

Because she is such a retiring person doesn't mean she would be a First Lady in name only. Her influence would be felt, but gently. For all her shyness, she's vivacious, forceful, and engaging.

Her guiding principle she stated simply: "His (Jack's) life is my life." So it seems she would be her husband's First Lady, his wife, and the mother of his children first and foremost. How she can best do all of this will dictate what kind of First Lady she would be.

The primaries gave Jackie first taste of campaigning.

The Senator is a very affectionate but firm father. As far as Jacqueline is concerned, what he says goes.

ning author, shares her respect for newsmen.

Formal entertaining, on the basis of past record, would probably be held to a minimum although Jacqueline is at home at such functions. Her own Newport wedding was described as "the most impressive the old society stronghold has seen in years." There were 900 guests at the reception, and Jacqueline reportedly charmed each one.

When I asked her how she managed to run a household as hectic as hers, she told me: "I've learned that we can't have any prearranged schedule in politics. Ever since Jack forgot to tell me that he had invited 40 guests to lunch soon after we were married, I've been prepared for any emergency. I can usually count on at least six persons for breakfast, any number for lunch, and who-knows-what for dinner. It's my greatest wish—and I flatter myself that I do it well—to run a house around such a busy man."

Her Job Is to Help Him

There's no question that Jacqueline would continue to "run the house" around her husband even if it were in the White House. "I want to take such good care of my husband," she told an interviewer, "that whatever he is doing, he can do it better because he has me. Not be pulled away from it—how awful that would be! His work is so important—and so exciting."

There is no scarcity of servants in the Kennedy household, but anyone who doubts that Jacqueline is the mistress in her own home is mistaken. She has a cook, governess, maid, and gardener in her Washington home; for the summers, the governess comes with them to Hyannis Port, Mass., where a butler is the core of a temporary staff.

But all of them work under Jacqueline. She's the one who makes everything function smoothly. She runs the household on a budget. "And I'm pretty good at sticking to it," she told me. "Neither Jack (who cares so little about money that he rarely has change in his pocket; his friends complain that they must pick up the checks) nor I are very extravagant. We live on his salary as a Senator."

Often she arranges an intimate dinner for one or two couples from among their closest friends. "Jack is tired at the end of the day, so I always try to keep our groups small," she told me. A typical group might consist of Torbert H. Macdonald, Jack's roommate at Harvard and now Congressman from Jack's old district in Boston; his wife; a Washington newspaper couple; and, maybe some of the Kennedy clan.

Food Isn't Important to Kennedys

Jacqueline talks about her home excitedly except when it comes to cooking. She's not the type of woman who exchanges menus. She sets a good table (her favorite menu is "red meat, a salad, and ice cream—Jack likes it"), but like her husband she is bored with "food talk."

If the culinary reports from a Kennedy White House would be scant, news about changes in decor would be correspondingly heavy. Jacqueline's taste is evident in both her red-brick home in the Georgetown section of the capital and her small clapboard sumner house in Hyannis Port.

"Both of our houses are only partially furnished," she told me. "I'll be very sad when they're finished. It's fun to browse the antique shops."

She has no favorite decor, modern or period. "The Cape home is strictly a summer house with nothing in it that could possibly be hurt by wet feet or bathing suits (both she and Jack love to swim and sail). I think we're a bit more comfortable in a house like this where we can relax."

The Kennedy house in Washington is more formal—"sort of like an elevator shaft, a different room on every floor," to use her description. "I love both homes and am happy in either one," she adds.

If the Kennedys should change their address to Pennsylvania Avenue in January, their living quarters will be conspicuous, too, for the great bulk of reading material they'll import. Jacqueline has always read voraciously; biographies and memoirs are her favorites. Jack has often startled people by picking up a magazine during a conversation and reading an article before rejoining the talk.

Sometimes Jacqueline coaxes the Senator to a movie. "It's very relaxing for him," she told me, and added: "He likes Westerns and Civil War pictures." She sounded as if she goes along just to be with him, not because she wants to see the show.

Jacqueline Kennedy would perhaps be the most beautiful First Lady ever to grace the White House, and possibly the best dressed. She doesn't believe in elaborate costumes, but her striking figure sets off her basically simple but exquisitely tailored dresses and suits.

Jacqueline May Shake Fashion World

Since the First Lady often sets style trends, Jacqueline might touch off something of a revolution in the fashion industry. Most of her predecessors have dressed properly and maturely, if somewhat unspectacularly. Jacqueline is in the age group in which women are most concerned with dress, and she shows a marked liking for sports clothes. Her expensively tailored slacks would likely be copied by a great number of young women.

She doesn't have closetsful of clothes, although she certainly could afford to. One reason is that she doesn't like to go on shopping sprees. "I try to shop only in the spring and the fall," she told me, "but I didn't get a chance at all this year."

Another reason for her limited wardrobe is her unwillingness to accept anything that isn't exactly right for her. "When you rush to a store," she told me, "you never find what you want."

"A suit, a good black dress with sleeves, and a short evening gown" are the only major items which she feels she needs for traveling. "At first, I used to bring everything. Not now. I wore one dress every single day during the West Virginia primary campaign," she told me. "It was four years old, but I was so glad to have it."

Jacqueline naturally wants to spend as much time as possible with her husband, but she has long since accepted the fact that in public life his time is not his own and will become even less so if he wins in November. Fortunately, she has her own consuming occupations. She's interested in art and is a gifted amateur painter. And then she has her books, always constant companions.

Because she is such a retiring person doesn't mean she would be a First Lady in name only. Her influence would be felt, but gently. For all her shyness, she's vivacious, forceful, and engaging.

Her guiding principle she stated simply: "His (Jack's) life is my life." So it seems she would be her husband's First Lady, his wife, and the mother of his children first and foremost. How she can best do all of this will dictate what kind of First Lady she would be.

The primaries gave Jackie first taste of campaigning.

TROPICS

Impossible? Not in Hawaii where teen-agers slide downhill with nothing more than a leaf and a strong pair of pants

ANYONE WHO ENJOYS the excitement of tobogganing might head for Alaska's snow-capped mountains before Hawaii's perpetual sunshine. But ingenious teen-agers in our 50th state have adapted the thrills and spills of toboggan-sliding to their tropical landscape. Whenever a rainstorm turns the rich soil of 2,000-foot-high Mount Tantalus to mud, youngsters trek out of Honolulu, picking wild ti leaves on the way. At the summit they gather the long, shiny leaves into bunches; then, like witches astride broomsticks, go careening downhill, sometimes singly, sometimes in a chain. Spills are plentiful, but mud and grass prevent serious injury, except to a slider's pride in case the seat of his pants gives way. No one has yet built a "ti-lift," and after a few slippery and exhausting climbs back uphill the youngsters are ready for a plunge in a mountain stream to wash off the mud and refresh themselves. This is a dip even the hardiest Alaskan tobogganers would pass up.

Human chain slides gaily down slope, finding all of the excitement of tobogganing adapted to the tropics.

After slippery and tiring treks back uphill, tobogganers gladly take dip in refreshing mountain streams.

Mud and grass cushion blows, but often pant seats give way!

Betty Crocker's
GOOD NEWS ABOUT FOOD
from the Betty Crocker Kitchens in Golden Valley...to yours

News... We've a lot of it in our kitchens here in Golden Valley—news we'd like to share with you each and every month. New products. New recipes. New cooking ideas. New things to make your life easier—or just plain more fun.

For it's here in our own sunny kitchens that all the Betty Crocker products you see in your stores first come to life. Products like our new Country Kitchen Cake Mixes! We can't help but be proud of these mixes. They bake up so high . . . and taste so moist and tender. Your wonderful letters tell us how much you've been liking them, too! So we've been working hard on some exciting new recipes just right for these extra-special mixes.

Our very first favorite is Velvet Cream Cake. A sheer delight of a cake . . . cool and rich and luscious. Like all of our recipes, this one was first developed in our kitchens here in Golden Valley, then sent to our test panels — homemakers like you all over the country—for thorough home testing. Now that women have voted it one of the all-time-great recipes from our kitchens, we're putting it on all the Betty Crocker Cake and Frosting Mix packages. You can make it in your favorite flavors. I do hope you'll try it . . . maybe at your next committee meeting? This is certainly the month for committees, and what a welcome surprise to have a great new cake and coffee.

News of the month: VELVET CREAM CAKE Cool! Rich! Luscious! Just follow the basic recipe

1. Bake Betty Crocker Country Kitchen Devils Food Cake Mix (or any other Betty Crocker Country Kitchen Cake Mix), in two 9" layers. Split cooled layers to make four.

2. Add 2 cups (dry mix) Betty Crocker Chocolate Fudge Flavor Frosting Mix (or any other Betty Crocker creamy Frosting Mix) to 1½ cups whipping cream and 1 tsp. vanilla for filling. Chill; whip. Fill cake.

3. Blend remaining dry Frosting Mix with 2 to 3 tbsp. hot water, 1 tbsp. light corn syrup. Beat until smooth. Add 1 to 2 tsp. more water, if necessary. Spread over top of cake; let dribble down sides. Chill. Makes about 12 servings.

SEPTEMBER'S a month when we just love to find new things to do with apples. We picked some from our very own trees to try out this new kind of apple pie. But I know you'll find nice, firm cooking apples in your own market for making this recipe.

PECAN-APPLE PIE—Heat oven to 450°. Line 9" pie pan with 13" circle of aluminum foil leaving 1" overhanging edge. Spread 2 tbsp. soft butter all over foil. Press 30 pecan halves round side down in butter. Gently pat ⅓ cup brown sugar (packed) into butter. Prepare pastry for 9" Two-Crust Pie as directed on Betty Crocker Instant Mixing Pie Crust Mix pkg. Divide into 2 parts. Roll one part into an 11" circle. Ease into pan. Mix 6 cups sliced apples, ¾ cup sugar, 2 tbsp. flour, 1 tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. nutmeg. Pile over crust in pan. Cover with top crust, seal and flute. Prick with fork. Brush lightly with milk. Bake 10 min. at 450°; decrease to 375°, bake 35 to 40 min. longer. Remove from oven, let stand 5 min. Invert on serving plate. Serve warm.

We've been thinking about your letters telling us that lemon is one of your family's favorite flavors, and now we have another lemon treat for you—our new Lemon Fluff Frosting Mix. Wonderful on your favorite cake—and exciting, too, in our brand-new cheesecake recipe.

Lemon Cheesecake

Heat oven to 350°. Blend 1½ cups fine graham cracker crumbs, ⅓ cup brown sugar (packed), ½ tsp. cinnamon. Add ⅓ cup butter, melted; mix well. Press crumb mixture evenly over bottom and sides of 8" sq. pan. Soften 8 oz. cream cheese to room temp. Press 1½ cups dry curd cottage cheese and ½ tsp. salt through sieve into large mixer bowl with cream cheese; set aside. Beat 1 pkg. Betty Crocker Lemon Fluff Frosting Mix as directed on pkg. Mix cheeses and gradually beat in prepared frosting. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 35 min. Carefully spread with 1 cup commercial sour cream. Cool; serve with frozen strawberries. 12 to 15 servings.

And perhaps you've noticed—we've done something nice to all our Fluffy Frostings. They mix up lighter, softer, smoother than ever. Deck your next cake with Fluffy Frosting. Sprinkle with coconut for a special treat.

Have you heard about our new Television program? It's called "National Velvet" and it starts tonight—September 18, on N.B.C. Do tune in, won't you?

SCHOOL DAYS bring round a host of new faces, and it's the nicest mother who has cookies and milk waiting. Our young friends get a lot of fun out of baking Gold Medal Oatmeal Cookies. This recipe makes enough to feed a whole pack of scouts!

Oatmeal Cookies*—Simmer 1 cup raisins and 1 cup water in saucepan over low heat until raisins are plump, 20 to 30 min. Drain raisin liquid into measuring cup. Add enough water to make ½ cup. Heat oven to 400°. Cream ¾ cup shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 tsp. vanilla. Stir in raisin liquid. Sift together 2½ cups sifted GOLD MEDAL "Kitchen-tested" Enriched Flour, ½ tsp. baking powder, 1 tsp. soda, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. cloves; and stir in. Add 2 cups rolled oats, raisins and ½ cup chopped nuts. Drop rounded teaspoonfuls about 2" apart on ungreased baking sheet. Bake 8 to 10 min., until lightly browned. Makes 6 to 7 doz.*

And here's a treat for the men in the house—our old-fashioned Beef Casserole topped with Bisquick biscuits. It's hearty and good these nippy fall evenings.

BEEF CASSEROLE—Roll 1½ lb. stewing beef (cubed) in mixture of ½ cup Bisquick, ½ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, ⅛ tsp. paprika. Brown meat thoroughly. Add ½ cup canned tomatoes, 2 small onions, chopped, 3 large carrots, sliced, 1 small clove garlic, cut up; sauté until onions are transparent. Add water to cover meat and vegetables. Cover lightly; cook over low heat until meat is tender, 1½ to 2 hr. Add more water if needed. Stir in ⅔ cup sour cream, ¼ tsp. Worcestershire Sauce, salt and pepper to taste.

Heat oven to 425°. Pour stew into 2-qt. baking dish; cover hot mixture with Sour Cream Chive Biscuits. Bake 15 to 20 min., until biscuits are golden brown. 4 to 6 servings.

Sour Cream Chive Biscuits: Make Rolled Biscuits on Bisquick pkg.—except substitute ⅔ cup sour cream and ⅓ cup water for milk. Add 1 tbsp. chopped chives.

Next month we'll have a lot to tell you about some exciting new products we're working on. Until then . . .

Betty Crocker's
GOOD NEWS ABOUT FOOD
from the Betty Crocker Kitchens in Golden Valley...to yours

NEWS... We've a lot of it in our kitchens here in Golden Valley—news we'd like to share with you each and every month. New products. New recipes. New cooking ideas. New things to make your life easier—or just plain more fun.

For it's here in our own sunny kitchens that all the Betty Crocker products you see in your stores first come to life. Products like our new Country Kitchen Cake Mixes! We can't help but be proud of these mixes. They bake up so high . . . and taste so moist and tender. Your wonderful letters tell us how much you've been liking them, too! So we've been working hard on some exciting new recipes just right for these extra-special mixes.

Our very first favorite is Velvet Cream Cake. A sheer delight of a cake . . . cool and rich and luscious. Like all of our recipes, this one was first developed in our kitchens here in Golden Valley, then sent to our test panels—homemakers like you all over the country—for thorough home testing. Now that women have voted it one of the all-time-great recipes from our kitchens, we're putting it on all the Betty Crocker Cake and Frosting Mix packages. You can make it in your favorite flavors. I do hope you'll try it . . . maybe at your next committee meeting? This is certainly the month for committees, and what a welcome surprise to have a great new cake and coffee.

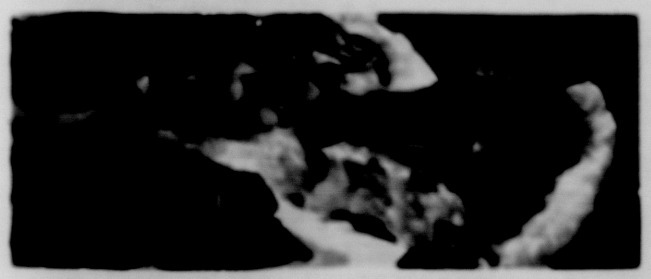

News of the month: VELVET CREAM CAKE Cool! Rich! Luscious! Just follow the basic recipe

1. Bake Betty Crocker Country Kitchen Devils Food Cake Mix (or any other Betty Crocker Country Kitchen Cake Mix), in two 9" layers. Split cooled layers to make four.

2. Add 2 cups (dry mix) Betty Crocker Chocolate Fudge Flavor Frosting Mix (or any other Betty Crocker creamy Frosting Mix) to 1½ cups whipping cream and 1 tsp. vanilla for filling. Chill, whip. Fill cake.

3. Blend remaining dry Frosting Mix with 2 to 3 tbsp. hot water, 1 tbsp. light corn syrup. Beat until smooth. Add 1 to 2 tsp. more water, if necessary. Spread over top of cake; let drizzle down sides. Chill. Makes about 12 servings.

SEPTEMBER'S a month when we just love to find new things to do with apples. We picked some from our very own trees to try out this new kind of apple pie. But I know you'll find nice, firm cooking apples in your own market for making this recipe.

PECAN-APPLE PIE—Heat oven to 450°. Line 9" pie pan with 13" circle of aluminum foil leaving 1" overhanging edge. Spread 2 tbsp. soft butter all over foil. Press 30 pecan halves round side down in butter. Gently pat ⅓ cup brown sugar (packed) into butter. Prepare pastry for 9" Two-Crust Pie as directed on Betty Crocker Instant Mixing Pie Crust Mix pkg. Divide into 2 parts. Roll one part into an 11" circle. Ease into pan. Mix 6 cups sliced apples, ⅓ cup sugar, 2 tbsp. flour, 1 tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. nutmeg. Pile over crust in pan. Cover with top crust, seal and flute. Prick with fork. Brush lightly with milk. Bake 10 min. at 450°; decrease to 375°, bake 35 to 40 min. longer. Remove from oven, let stand 5 min. Invert on serving plate. Serve warm.

We've been thinking about your letters telling us that lemon is one of your family's favorite flavors, and now we have another lemon treat for you—our new Lemon Fluff Frosting Mix. Wonderful on your favorite cake—and exciting, too, in our brand-new cheesecake recipe.

Lemon Cheesecake

Heat oven to 350°. Blend 1¼ cups fine graham cracker crumbs, ⅓ cup brown sugar (packed), ½ tsp. cinnamon. Add ⅓ cup butter, melted; mix well. Press crumb mixture evenly over bottom and sides of 8" sq. pan. Soften 8 oz. cream cheese to room temp. Press 1½ cups dry curd cottage cheese and ½ tsp. salt through sieve into large mixer bowl with cream cheese; set aside. Beat 1 pkg. Betty Crocker Lemon Fluff Frosting Mix as directed on pkg. Mix cheeses and gradually beat in prepared frosting. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 35 min. Carefully spread with 1 cup commercial sour cream. Cool; serve with frozen strawberries. 12 to 15 servings.

And perhaps you've noticed—we've done something nice to all our Fluffy Frostings. They mix up lighter, softer, smoother than ever. Deck your next cake with Fluffy Frosting. Sprinkle with coconut for a special treat.

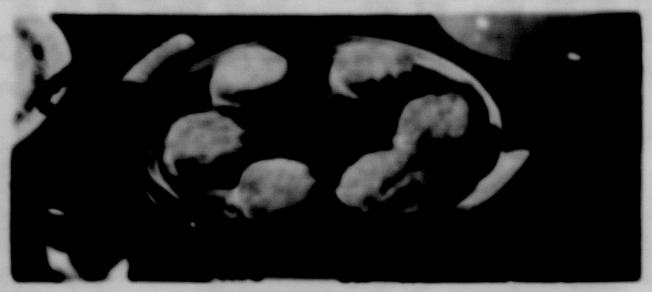

Have you heard about our new Television program? It's called "National Velvet" and it starts tonight—September 18, on N.B.C. Do tune in, won't you?

SCHOOL DAYS bring round a host of new faces, and it's the nicest mother who has cookies and milk waiting. Our young friends get a lot of fun out of baking Gold Medal Oatmeal Cookies. This recipe makes enough to feed a whole pack of scouts!

Oatmeal Cookies—Simmer 1 cup raisins and 1 cup water in saucepan over low heat until raisins are plump, 20 to 30 min. Drain raisin liquid into measuring cup. Add enough water to make ½ cup. Heat oven to 400°. Cream ¾ cup shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 tsp. vanilla. Stir in raisin liquid. Sift together 2½ cups sifted GOLD MEDAL "Kitchen-tested" Enriched Flour, ½ tsp. baking powder, 1 tsp. soda, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. cloves; and stir in. Add 2 cups rolled oats, raisins and ½ cup chopped nuts. Drop rounded teaspoonfuls about 2" apart on ungreased baking sheet. Bake 8 to 10 min., until lightly browned. Makes 6 to 7 doz.

QUIPS AND QUOTES

The family had just moved to a Southeast-Coast community and lived in daily fear of hurricanes. When the season came, a neighbor told them there was nothing to worry about. "Just call the weather bureau, learn when and where the hurricane is coming, then take precautions."

At the next warning, the family called the weather bureau and asked for news about the coming hurricane. "Please be specific," a laconic voice answered. "You mean the hurricanes that are coming from the east or the west —or the ones that will hit this afternoon and tomorrow?"

Sports Interviews I've Yet to Read

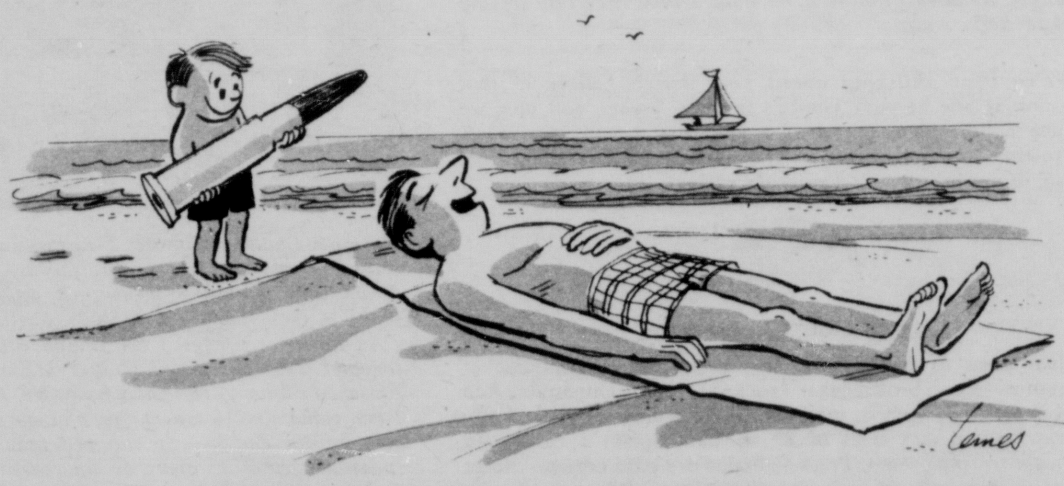

"Too bad you lost the World Series. Which team would you say got the most breaks?"
"Funny thing about that—we did."

"I see that most of your first-stringers have graduated. How do your football prospects look for this fall, Coach?"
"Terrific!"

"If Kid Flanagan gives you a return match, do you think you can lick him?"
"You crazy or somethin'?"

"So you finally ran a mile in four minutes. Are you content to let it stand at that?"
"Perfectly."

"How come you've already spent 82 minutes in the penalty box this season?"
"I play dirty hockey." —Parke Cummings

The Horse and Rider Relay

By Ragna Eskil

Here's a game for boys and girls dressed in jeans.

Props are two chairs or boxes placed some 20 feet from the starting line. Players are divided into two teams, and each team is paired as horses and riders. At the starting signal, the first horse in each team drops on his hands and knees, and his rider rides him by holding him up by the ankles while he walks forward on his hands. At the goal (horse must tag goal), horse and rider change places and rush back to the starting point. Then the second pair starts off immediately. The team whose last pair finishes first wins!

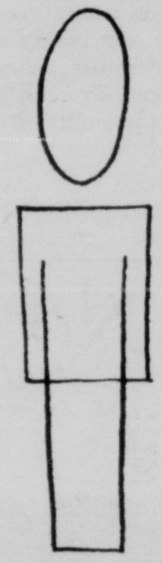

Smooth Walker!

By Quentin R. Howard

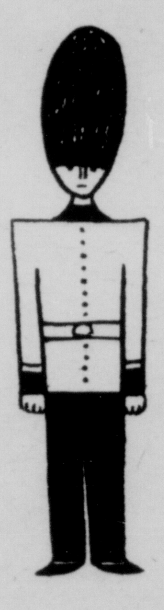

Here is a good game for indoors or out—a tricky walking game. First, each player must try to walk to the goal and back again with his arms stretched out in front, palms down, and a peanut balanced on the back of each hand. Next, the peanuts must be balanced on top of the player's shoes as he walks to the goal and back. Last, an apple is balanced on top of the head. The first one to finish without mishap is the winner.

Guess a Number

By Nat Bradford

Write down all these numbers—12345679 (no eight, notice?) and ask your friend to pick one. Suppose he picks 2. In your mind, multiply this by 9 (no matter which number he picks, the trick is to always multiply it by 9). Now say: "Do this problem and you will have lots of your number!" Tell him to multiply 12345679 by 18 (his number 2 times 9). The answer will be a long row of 2s—his number. This works for any number picked. Try it and see!

The Horse and Rider Relay

By Ragna Eskil

Here's a game for boys and girls dressed in jeans.

Props are two chairs or boxes placed some 20 feet from the starting line. Players are divided into two teams, and each team is paired as horses and riders. At the starting signal, the first horse in each team drops on his hands and knees, and his rider rides him by holding him up by the ankles while he walks forward on his hands. At the goal (horse must tag goal), horse and rider change places and rush back to the starting point. Then the second pair starts off immediately. The team whose last pair finishes first wins!

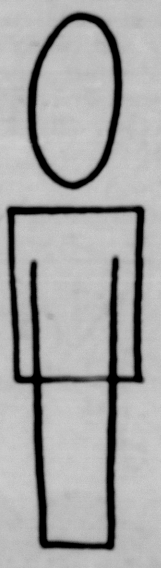

Smooth Walker!

By Quentin R. Howard

Here is a good game for indoors or out—a tricky walking game. First, each player must try to walk to the goal and back again with his arms stretched out in front, palms down, and a peanut balanced on the back of each hand. Next, the peanuts must be balanced on top of the player's shoes as he walks to the goal and back. Last, an apple is balanced on top of the head. The first one to finish without mishap is the winner.

Let's Draw a Sentry

A royal guardsman
of the queen
Is very strong and straight.

In bright red coat
And bearskin cap,
He guards the palace gate.

Guess a Number

By Nat Bradford

Write down all these numbers—12345679 (no eight, notice?) and ask your friend to pick one. Suppose he picks 2. In your mind, multiply this by 9 (no matter which number he picks, the trick is to always multiply it by 9). Now say: "Do this problem and you will have lots of your number!" Tell him to multiply 12345679 by 18 (his number 2 times 9). The answer will be a long row of 2s—his number. This works for any number picked. Try it and see!

THOSE WHO REMEMBER the old MGM movie, "National Velvet," will also recall an extraordinarily beautiful 12-year-old named Elizabeth Taylor, whose memorable performance seemed as unmatchable as it was unforgettable.

Which is precisely why a dark-haired, blue-eyed, 13-year-old girl named Lori Martin is turning everyone's head. For one thing, television is launching a new series based on the movie, in which Lori will play Velvet Brown. For another thing, she has the looks, the acting ability, and the determination to follow Liz's footsteps all the way to the top.

Like Liz, she is sensitive, loves animals (Lori is also writing a book about them), and has been an excellent horseback rider for years. Unlike Liz, who had only minor roles prior to her big break, Lori has studied drama and acted steadily on TV for the past six years.

Perhaps this is why she has an uncanny poise that often makes her seem more like 23 than 13. She claims, for example, she didn't really want to do a TV series because it's so "restricting" and avows: "The only reason I accepted 'National Velvet' is because I love horses so much . . ."

What's more, Lori already has developed a sense of humor that will help keep her down-to-earth while her star rises. For instance, when asked whom she most wanted to be like, she quipped, "John Wayne." And in reply to the inevitable, "Do you like boys?" she flashed a mischievous smile and said, "Sure, but I like men better."

With such style, so early, how can Lori Martin miss?

Lori's startling resemblance to Liz is not the only reason she was chosen for TV role. Already, she has established herself as an actress and an individual who bears watching.

THE ABOMINABLE SNOWMAN—

Man, Myth, or Monster?

Two famous men now are climbing the Himalayas seeking the answer; here is an interview with one, zoologist Marlin Perkins, who may prove the Yeti exists by bringing it back alive

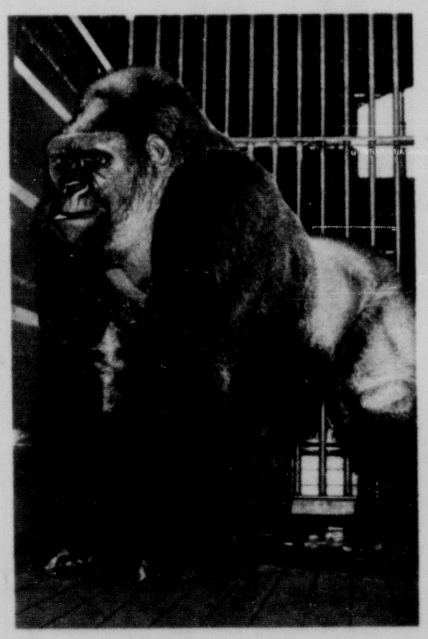

By HOWARD EARLE

A BAND OF renowned explorers and scientists is trudging up treacherous, wind-swept slopes of the remote Himalaya Mountains on a mission which may discover a living link to man's distant beginnings—or simply prove that grown men still believe in fairy tales.

Leading the British-American expedition is Sir Edmund Hillary, the craggy-featured mountaineer who electrified the world seven years ago by being the first man to climb Mount Everest. But the key figure is mild, soft-spoken Marlin Perkins, a scientist more at home running a zoo than in the wilds of the Indian-Tibetan border.

Their goal is to find the Abominable Snowman—a fantasy to some, a rare and priceless mammal to others—which for nearly a century has lured adventurers into the hardships and dangers of the Himalayas.

Before he left the United States, I interviewed Marlin Perkins, director of Chicago's famed Lincoln Park Zoo and star performer of TV's former "Zoo Parade." With frank skepticism, I asked why two leading figures in exploration and zoology were determined to track down something nobody but fanciful natives had ever seen.

Experts have wondered if the Yeti might be related to famed gorilla Bushman, late pride of Chicago's Lincoln Park Zoo.

"Something in the Himalayas is leaving strange tracks in the snow," Perkins replied flatly. "The tracks have been photographed, and they differ from any other tracks. Zoologists can't identify them as belonging to any known living creature, so they certainly bear investigation."

The photographs which excite this scientist's curiosity were taken in 1951 by Sir Eric Shipton, a highly reputable British mountain climber, probably no more than a few hours after "something" made them 18,000 feet high, far beyond the last line of trees.

From the vivid photos, experts conclude that the Snowman's foot is about 10 inches long and five inches wide; its stride is 2½ feet, about that of a six-foot man.

Hillary and Perkins are attempting to locate fresh tracks. This will not be unusual; expeditions have been coming across these strange markings since 1887. A previous expedition in 1954 to find the Abominable Snowman saw tracks but never the creature.

Hillary and Perkins are equipped not only to record evidence of the Snowman's existence but, if possible, to bring it back alive. Twelve cameras will be set up along mountain routes and rigged so that the Snowman will trip their shutters on contact.

Two special guns also have been carried to the high Himalayas by native bearers. They fire hypodermic syringes capable of injecting knockout drops into the mystery beast. There will be regular firearms along, too.

"If we see the Snowman, we'll make every effort to capture it alive," Perkins says. "We don't intend to harm it—but we can't predict what will happen until we know what we are looking for, and how big the animal is.

"We are taking several viewing scopes as well as camera equipment. Once the Snowman is spotted, even at long range, we will know how to go about capturing it."

Despite the failure of other expeditions to find anything more than tracks, equipment of the group includes material for building superstrength cages for a captive Snowman.

Getting ready for the Himalayan expedition are (L. to R.): Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mt. Everest; Barry Bishop, geographer; Marlin Perkins, zoologist; and Michael Gill, physiologist.

The creature Perkins may bring back alive has been described as a reddish-haired, ape-like mammal by natives who insist they have seen it—even witnessed it kill villagers on bloody rampages. The Snowman, or Yeti as the Himalayan people call it, reportedly stands upright like a man, but when excited lumbers on all four limbs like a bear. It is between five and six feet in length with a conical-shaped head and coarse hair falling over its eyes.

Natives have told Hillary and Perkins to listen for its call in the late afternoon or evening—a combination of yelping and wailing. Others, however, describe the cry as something like that of a sea gull and heard mostly between dark and dawn.

PERKINS ALSO has been told he will have to struggle up to the Himalayan snowfields between 13,000 and 19,000 feet to find the Yeti. But he disagrees. "I've never done any high-altitude mountain climbing," he says, "and don't think I will have to now. The track-maker, whether beast or fowl, must eat to live, and there is little to eat at great heights.

"We are pretty certain the 'thing' lives on small animals, large insects, and shrubs, especially rhodendrons. All are plentiful in the lower mountain valleys, say around the 10,000-foot elevations."

Perkins also points out that vegetation at lower levels affords the protective coverage a predatory beast would seek. He explains its presence at snowline altitudes as forays and aimless meanderings.

Meager evidence about the Snowman has led experts to describe it as an imperial eagle, a sloth, a bear—even a priestly lama trekking to the upper world to commune with God. "There is something wrong with every one of these guesses," Perkins insists. "The Snowman's tracks are entirely different. I have definite reason for saying so."

Perkins took photographs of tracks made by the famous gorilla Bushman and compared them with the Snowman's. There was no resemblance. Only when comparing the mysterious tracks with those of the human foot did Perkins find many similarities. For example, the big toe of the Snowman is close to its other toes, as on a human foot; an anthropoid's toe extends away.

"We may be on the track of some sort of man-ape or sub-man, some creature which may be closely linked to the Neanderthal, Java, Peking, or Heidelberg man," Perkins told me. "In 1939, almost a complete skull of a Neanderthal child, together with parts of the skeleton, was found in a cave in Central Asia. The skeleton was anatomically between the ape-man of Java and the Heidelberg man."

Perkins does not say so, but he gives the impression that he thinks the track-maker of the Himalayas could turn out to be a type of prehistoric mammal more closely related to man than anything known.

But when he finds himself wandering too deeply into this possibility, Marlin Perkins stops abruptly and says: "Remember, we are not trying to prove any preconceived ideas. We just want to learn what is making those tracks and maybe make contact with it. We simply seek more information."

The coming weeks and months will tell how successful Perkins and Sir Edmund Hillary will be—whether their elaborate expedition means folly or fame.
